Lineage.—The family of Sanders, Saunders, or Sandars, of Sandersted and Charlwood, and Ewell, in Surrey, and Lullington, Caldwell, Ireton, and Mackworth, in Derbyshire, is a very ancient one, taking its name from or giving name to the village of Sandersted, in Surrey, where tha family was settled before the Conquest.

In the time of Henry VI, William Sander, of Charlwood, m. Joane, dau. and co-heiress of Thomas Carew, Esq. of Beddington; he d. 1481, she d. 1470, and both were buried at Charlwood. His eldest son, who d. v. p.,

I. Nicolas, of Charlwood, m. 1504, Alice, dau. of William Hungate, of Saxton, in Yorkshire, and had three sons and three daus; he d. 1553, and was buried at Charlwood. Sir Thomas Sanders, Knight, of Charlwood, son of Nicolas, king's remembrancer of the exchequer 1551-54, and high sheriff of Surrey 1553, d. 1563. At the inquisition on his death he was possessed of large estates in Surrey and Sussex. His descendants continued at Charlwood till 1660, when Edmond Sanders, Esq., dying without issue, Charlwood was sold by his sisters, and thus this line ceased.
II. William, of Aston, 36 Henry VIII, high sheriff of Surrey 1556. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of — Mynes, and had twelve children, one of them was

Dr. Nicholas Sanders, a zealous Roman Catholic controversialist, b. at Charlwood 1527, educated at Winchester, in 1548, fellow of New Coll., Oxford, in 1557, professor of canon law at Oxford, and afterwards regius professor and D.D. at the University of Louvain. He went from Rome to the famous council of Trent, in company with its president, Cardinal Hosius, with whom he also went to Poland and Lithuania. In 1579, he was sent by Pope Gregory XIII as apostolic nuncio to Ireland, with a consecrated banner, to raise a rebellion, for which purpose the King of Spain also furnished him with troops; but in 1583, their leader, the Earl of Desmond, being defeated, Dr. Sanders fled for his life into the woods and marshes, where, subdued by cold and hunger, he perished miserably. He wrote De Visibili Monarchiâ Ecclesiæ, and twenty-two other works.

III. Thomas, of whose line we treat.

The 3rd son,

Thomas Sanders, of Lullington, in Derbyshire, was the first that settled in that county. He came from the wars in Flanders with Sir John Gresley, of Drakelow, about 1524. He m. the heiress of Collingwood and Barton, co. Stafford, and Caldwell, co. Derby, and dying in 1558 was buried at Lullington. His son,

Thomas Sanders, of Caldwell, b. 1548; m. in 1575, Alice, dau. of Henry Poone, and d. 1 Sept. 1627, having had eight sons and four daus.; he was buried at Lullington. His son,

Collingwood Sanders, lord of the manors of Caldwell and Lullington, a counsellor-at-law, b. 1578; m. Eliza, dau. and heiress of Edmund Sleigh, of Little Ireton; d. 6 May, 1653; buried at Caldwell; had eight sons and three daus. The eldest son of Collingwood Sanders, of Ireton and Caldwell,

Sir Thomas Sanders, Knt., b. Aug. 1610, at Caldwell, a col. of cavalry in the parliamentary army, custos rotulorum, and three times representative of the co. of Derby in parliament. Upon the eruption of the civil war, he raised at his own expense a troop of horse, and joined the army of the parliament. Cromwell placed great trust in him. Some letters from Cromwell to Sir Thomas Sanders, and answers thereto by him, are still preserved. He was appointed a lieut.-col. in 1643, and was, with Sir John Gell, present at most of the battles and sieges between the Royalists and Roundheads in the midland counties. In 1648, he had, to the exclusion of Col. Hutchinson, the command of a regt. of cavalry given to him. He was appointed by parliament one of the judges to try King Charles, but refused to sit. He next, under Gen. Monk, campaigned in Scotland, and with Colonels Alured and Okey, endeavoured to check Cromwell's arrogance, refusing to acknowledge him as "Protector," or to recognise the right of his individual supremacy, having thus incurred the displeasure of his patron, he was deprived of his regt. and ordered to London. When in 1656, after being duly elected for the second time to represent the co. of Derby (the first time was in 1654), he came to Westminster. Entrance to the House of Commons was refused him by order of Cromwell. Whereupon he, with Sir Arthur Haslerigg and others, published an indignant and vituperative remonstrance to the House against the Protector. For this bold conduct he was imprisoned at Coventry. In 1658, however, after Oliver Cromwell's death, at the instance of Gen. Monk, he was again placed in command of a regt. of cavalry, and was returned for parliament by the co. of Derby. He assisted in the capture of Col. Lambert, and having experienced personally the ill success of parliamentary and protectorial rule, he, in 1660, with Gen. Monk, welcomed in Charles II's restoration, the return of monarchy and order. In 1664, he was appointed by parliament a second time commissioner for Derbyshire. He filled the same post in 1640, in the reign of Charles I, and in 1665 he appears to have addressed to the Government a remonstrance against the King's mistresses and the other extravagances of his dissolute court. After this he seems to have subsided into private life. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Goring, Esq. of Kingston, co. Stafford,

SANDYS-LUMSDAINE OF LUMSDAINE.

Sandys-Lumsdaine, The Rev. Edwin, of Lumsdaine and Blanerne, co. Berwick, and Innergellie, co. Fife, Rector of Upper Hardres-cum-Stelling, co. Kent, b. 1785; m. 1816, Mary-Lillias, dau. and (on her brother's death) heiress of William Lumsdaine, and in right of her assumed, in 1830, the name and arms of Lumsdaine, in addition to those of Sandys. He has issue by her, Edwin Lumsdaine, b. 1818, M.A., barrister-at-law.

Selina-Helen, m. 1850, to the Rev. Foster-George Simpson.
Helen-Melville.

Lineage.—The ancient border family of Lumsdaine has resided in Berwickshire from a very early date. The lands of Lumsden were granted to the neighbouring priory of Coldingham by King Edgar, circ. 973, and were soon afterwards divided into East and West Lumsden, the former of which was held of the priory by a family (which took its name from the estate) as manorial tenants. They resided on this property till the early part of the 14th century, when, becoming possessed of the lands of Blanerne in the same co., they erected there for their future residence a mansion on the banks of the Whitadder, the ruins of which still remain.

Gillem and Crende Lumisden attested a charter granted to the priory of Coldingham, by Waldeve, Earl of Dunbar, between the years 1166 and 1182; and the names of Radulf, William, John, Adam, and Gilbert de Lumisden appear attesting different grants to the same priory in the long reign of William the Lion, circ. 1200. The next of whom we find mention is

Adam de Lumisden, whose name appears among the signatures to Ragman's Roll, in fealty to Edward I, in 1292, 1296, and 1297. He was the immediate ancestor of the Lumsdaines of that ilk and Blanerne, whose representative, the gallant

Sir James Lumsdaine, was col. in the army of Gustavus-Adolphus, King of Sweden. At the siege of Frankfort, he and Hepburn, who commanded another Scotch regiment in the Swedish service, being called upon by name by the King, forced the gate of the city, and entered at the head of their men; Sir James's regiment alone took eighteen colours. His great-grandson,

Robert Lumsdaine, of that ilk, and afterwards of Stravithie, in right of his wife, Eliza, dau. and heiress of his cousin, James Lumsdaine, Esq. of Stravithie, upon whose death he re-m. Sophia Lumden. He left issue,

William Lumsdaine, was youngest brother of the famous Sir James Lumsdaine, the distinguished soldier under Gustavus-Adolphus. William Lumsdaine, who thus became head representative of the family, d. unm. 6 Jan. 1830, and was s. by his sister,

I. Abby-Josephine-Anne.

Lineage.—The first of the family of Sarsfield who went to Ireland was THOMAS DE SARSFIELD, "Premier porte banniere du Rol HENRY II," A.D. 1172.

The titles of Earl of Lucan, Viscount of Kilmallock, and premier baronet of Ireland, were borne by different branches of the family. The Sarsfields, of Sarsfield Court, from whom the Boughcloyne line, of which we treat, directly descends, twice forfeited their estates; first, under CROMWELL, but were reinstated at the Restoration; and again, under WILLIAM III, having taken an active and conspicuous part in the cause of JAMES II.

DAVID DE SARSFIELD, who, before 1300, possessed the manors of Glynnan and Calyail, was ancestor of

GEOFFREY SARSFIELD, who m. Jeanie Martyn, and acquired with her large estates near Cork, and the fishery called Tully Calvy; he was father of THOMAS SARSFIELD, whose son, EDMUND SARSFIELD, is mentioned in the will of Peter "Sarchell." He had two sons,

WILLIAM, of whose line presently.
THOMAS, ancestor of the SARSFIELDS, VISCOUNTS KILMALLOCK.

The elder son,

WILLIAM SARSFIELD, has two sons, THOMAS and James, whose son, Patrick, was ancestor of a branch of the family settled at Johnstown. The former, THOMAS SARSFIELD, presented to the rectory of Glanman in 1582. He was father of WILLIAM SARSFIELD, mentioned in the settlements of Sarsfield Court, 14 Oct. 1620. This William had (with younger issue) a son, THOMAS SARSFIELD, living in 1633, who was father of

DOMINICK SARSFIELD, who obtained a decree, 23 July, 1663, to be re-established in possession of Sarsfield Court, Templulosky, and other lands, which had been confiscated by CROMWELL, and, 3 July, 1681, letters-patent to execute the decree. His son,

Mr. Scrope of Danby claims the Earldom of Wilts: his Case is now before the House of Lords.

Lineage.—Among the numerous baronial families which formerly possessed great influence in England, that of LE SCROPE, or SCROPE stands conspicuous. Though some of their titles are now dormant, and others extinct, few persons were more distinguished in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries; and Shakespeare has given immortality to no less than three individuals of that name. The house of Scrope was ennobled in two branches, SCROPE OF BOLTON, and SCROPE OF MASHAM AND UPSAL; and its members shared the glory of all the great victories of the middle ages. An unbroken male descent from the CONQUEST, if not from the time of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR, and the emphatic declaration of the Earl of Arundel, given in 1386, as a witness in the celebrated controversy between Sir Richard Scrope and Sir Robert Grosvenor for the right of bearing the coat AZURE, A BEND OR, as well as of numerous other deponents in that cause, that the representative of this family "was descended from noble and generous blood, of gentry and ancient ancestry, who had always preserved their name and estate in dignity and honour," as well as their alliances and property, sufficiently attest their antiquity and importance; whilst the mere enumeration of the dignities which they attained between the reigns of EDWARD II and CHARLES I proves the high rank they enjoyed. In this period of three hundred years, the house of Scrope produced two earls and twenty barons, one chancellor, four treasurers, and two chief justices of England, one archbishop, and two bishops, five knights of the garter, and numerous bannerets, the highest military order in the days of chivalry.

RICHARD SCROPE held various manors in Worcestershire, Herefordshire, and Shropshire, in the time of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR, as appears on the authority of Domesday Book, at the compilation of which they were possessed by his son,

OSBORN FITZ-RICHARD, or FITZ-SCROP, who in 1067, whilst WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR and the greater part of his nobles were in Normandy, assisted the castellon of Hereford, in subduing the rebel Edric. From him descended the Lords Scrope of Bolton, and the Lords Scrope of Masham.

SIR HENRY LE SCROPE, 8th Baron Scrope, of Bolton, who left, by Elizabeth, his first wife, dau. of Henry, Earl of Northumberland, HENRY, 9th LORD SCROPE OF BOLTON, and

SETON OF MOUNIE.

SETON, DAVID, Esq. of Mounie, co. Aberdeen, formerly of the 93rd highlanders, and afterwards of the 49th regt., retired from the army, 4 Sept. 1849, and s. his brother, Lieut.-Col. Seton, 1852.

Lineage.—This family is a branch of the Setons of Pitmedden, co. Aberdeen, Barts., who derive their descent from the Hon. William Seton, younger brother of the first Earl of Huntly.

At the earliest period of authentic records, we find the chiefs of the Seton family established as lords of the soil at their baronial residence, Seton or Seytoun, in East Lothian, now Haddingtonshire. Here, though possessing other large estates, they continued to hold their principal seat through a period of nearly seven centuries, until their attachment to the house of Stuart led to their attainder and confiscation in 1716, in the person of George, 5th Earl of Winton and 11th Lord Seton, who, taking refuge on the continent, d. there unm. some years afterwards. From a 2nd son of this house, Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon, descended the Earls and Marquesses of Huntly, also the Dukes of Gordon (extinct). Like other ancient surnames, that of Seton has been variously written, Setoun, Seytone, Seaton, &c.

GEORGE SETON, of Mounie (2nd son of Sir Alexander Seton, of Pitmedden, a lord of Session, under the title of Lord Pitmedden, who was created a bart. of Nova Scotia, 1684, see BURKE'S Peerage and Baronetage), m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir Alexander Gibson Bart. of Pentland, and by her had (with two sons, who d. unm.) a dau., Helen, wife of Alexander Leslie, Esq. of Warthill. He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of John Leslie, grandson of James Leslie, of Warthill, and had by her a son and five daus., viz.,

I. WILLIAM, his heir.
I. MARGARET, of whom presently.
II. Isabella, m. to the Rev. Skene Ogilvy, D.D., lineal descendant and nearest male representative of the Hon. Francis Ogilvy, of Newgrange, 6th son of James, 5th Lord Ogilvy, of Airlie, by his wife, Jean, dau. of William, Lord Forbes.
III. Catherine, m. to William Henderson, Esq. of Newton, an officer in the army.
IV. Rachael.
V. Jean

The only son, WILLIAM, s. his father, but d. unm., when the estates devolved upon his sister,

MARGARET SETON, who m. James Anderson, Esq., LL.D. of Cobenshaw, son of James Anderson, Esq. of Cobenshaw, 2nd son of James Anderson, Esq. of Cleugh and Cobenshaw. The property of the elder branch of this family, which, originally from the North of England, claims a common descent with the Andersons of Broughton, Barts., and the Earl of Yarborough, passed into other hands at the decease of Alexander Anderson, Esq. of Cleugh, in 1790. By this marriage with Mr. Anderson, who sold his paternal estate of Cobenshaw, and adopted the surname of SETON according to the terms of succession, Mrs. Seton had (with other issue) a son and heir,

ALEXANDER SETON, Esq. of Mounie, J.P. and D.L., who m. 1810, his cousin, Janet-Skene, dau. of the above-named Skene Ogilvy, and had issue,

IV. George, an officer in the army, m. 1853, Anne Lucy, only surviving dau. of the late Baldwin Wake (grandson of Sir William Wake, 7th Bart. of Courteen Hall, co. Northampton, and nephew of Sir William Wake, 8th Bart.), by his wife, Sarah, dau. of James Spedding, Esq. of Summergrove, co. Cumberland, and has issue, 1 Alexander-David; 2 William-George.
V. William-Skene, d. 23rd July, 1829.

II. Anne, b. and d. in 1812.
III. Jessy-Jane, d. at Pisa, in Italy, 19th Feb. 1831.

Mr. Seton d. 16 April, 1850, and was s. by his eldest surviving son, ALEXANDER SETON, Esq., an officer first in the royal N.B. fusiliers, afterwards in the 74th highlanders. He was appointed adjutant deputy-quartermaster-gen. to the forces in Ireland in 1849, resigned that office on promotion the following year, and became lieut.-col. of the 74th highlanders, 7th Nov. 1851. Being in command of the troops proceeding to the Kaffir war in H.M. steam transport "Birkenhead," he was drowned in the wreck of that vessel near Point Danger, Cape of Good Hope, 26th Feb. 1852. In that disaster more than four hundred men perished under most appalling circumstances, but order and discipline were maintained to the last. Issuing his orders with clearness and promptitude, when the vessel was on the rock, Col. Seton endeavoured to provide for the safety of all that could be saved. He placed the women and children in the only boats that could be made available, and thus succeeded in preserving their lives, not one woman or child being lost. Setting an example of coolness, resolution, and self-devotion, he made no attempt to quit the sinking ship in order to save his own life, but applying himself to the duties of his command, calmly met his fate. Lieut.-Col. Seton, thus cut off at the age of 37, was gifted with talents of a high order. In 1846 he received from the Royal Military College a first-class certificate of his attainments in the highest departments of mathematical science, and he was equally distinguished as a linguist, while, to a thorough knowledge of his profession, he joined extensive acquirements in various branches of science, literature, and art. Never having married, he was s. by his brother David, now of Mounie.

In the centre of the quarterings a crescent, az., for difference.

Lineage.—This family, resident for several centuries at Hanford, in Dorsetshire, claims a common progenitor with the ducal house of Somerset. In COLLINS' Peerage, under that dukedom, there is a conjecture as to the descent of the Seymers of Hanford from Humphrey Seymer, of Even Swindon. The conjecture arose probably from the coincidence of date, similarity of arms, and the spelling of the name. It appears in the early part of the pedigree of the ducal family, the termination was ER. It is presumed that the family held the estate of Hanford under the abbesses of Tarent, until the dissolution in HENRY VIIIth's time; it has been the constant abode of the Seymers ever since.

Lineage.—In old charters the name is variously spelt Scharp, Scharpe, &c., but not without the Sc till the 18th century. The earliest charter of the lands of Houstoun, or Houstar, or Houstain, bears date about 1550, when it is supposed that Houstoun was acquired by Sir John Scharp, Knt. an eminent lawyer and king's advocate. Before this, the family possessed the lands of Ballindoch, Craigie, &c., in Forfarshire; how long this tenure reaches back we have not yet ascertained. These lands, in Forfarshire, they continued to hold till some time in the 17th century, when they parted with them and were confined solely to Linlithgowshire. During the wars of CHARLES, they took the royal side. Scharp of Houstoun, bore a "mourning standard" at the funeral of Archbishop Sharp, but whether they were related seems uncertain. At the time of the Union, the then Shairp of Houstoun was one of the two knights for the shire of Linlithgow, in the last Scottish parliament. He spoke and voted against the Union.

The great-grandfather of the present representative of this ancient family,

THOMAS SHAIRP, Esq. of Houstoun, had, by Janet his wife, two sons, THOMAS, his heir; and Walter (Sir), consul at St. Petersburg. The former,

SHORTT OF DUMFRIESSHIRE.

Lineage.—The surname of this family appears, from the public records, to have been spelled at different periods, Schorte, Schort, Short, and Shortt; and there is reason to believe that they came to Scotland from Holland. The date of their transmigration is uncertain, but so far back as 1491 tradition states Archibald Schort to have been the proprietor of all, or part of Cambus Barron, co. Stirling. Leaving, however, doubt for certainty, we can trace on record,

James Schorte, of Stirlingshire, the immediate ancestor of the family of which we treat. This James m. Agnes, sister of John Cowan, of Stirling, and had issue, John, Andrew, James, and Agnes, m. to William Dempster. The eldest son,

John Schort, was, 25 April, 1628, served heir to his father, which service was duly retoured to Chancery; and 6 Nov. 1638, he was served heir to his uncle, Alexander Cowan, in the lands and barony of Edrain, Cum Molendinis, &c., together with a farther portion of Cambus Barron, also the lands and barony of Lecky, commonly called Wester Lecky, and the house and lands of Cornetown and Southfield. He m. Mary Scott, and had issue,

Alexander, who was served heir to his father, 17 April, 1655; the greater portion of his fortune he sacrificed for the protection of the civil and religious liberty of his country, and was eventually obliged to fly to Holland, when his whole property, real and personal, was forfeited. His brother Robert, who went to Dumfriesshire, was for years hunted night and day, and the whole of his property was partly seized and partly burned by Graham of Claverhouse. Alexander Schort m. the sister of William Stirling, of Harbertshyre, co. Stirling, and estates in Fifeshire, which gradually went to other houses from failure of male heirs in the direct line. The name frequently occurs in Charters of the 11th and 12th centuries; but owing to the troubled state of the country since that remote period, the learned antiquary, Sir Robert Sibbald, could only trace the descent back, in a direct line, to Sir Thomas Sibbald, of Balgonie, b. 1426, principal treasurer in the reigns of James II, and James IV. He was s. by his son, Sir John Sibbald, of Balgonie, who was s. by his son, Sir Andrew Sibbald, sheriff of Fyfe, who had a son, John, his successor, and a dau. Elizabeth, who m. George Douglas, Earl of Angus, ancestor of Henry, Lord Darnley, husband of Mary, Queen of Scotts. The son,

Besides Sir Andrew, Sir John had another son, called John, who inherited the property of Kair, Castletown, Mondynes, and Balfour, and had issue,

SIBTHORP OF SIBTHORP AND LANEHAM, NOTTS, NOW OF CANWICK HALL, NEAR LINCOLN, AND POTTERELLS, HERTS.

Waldo-Sibthorp, Coningsby-Charles, Esq. of Canwick Hall, co. Lincoln, and Potterells, Herts, b. 27 Oct. 1846; s. his father 13 Oct. 1861.

Lineage.—The name of Sibthorp, sometimes spelt Sybthorp, Sibethorp, &c., is pure Saxon, Sib signifying peaceful or quiet, and thorp a village. The family of Sibthorp was of great consideration in Nottinghamshire, and held high position for many generations in that co., in which they were at different times proprietors of several manors, and connected with the oldest and most important families, while their beneficence was attested by the foundation and liberal endowments of Sibthorp College, which finally fell under the confiscations of Henry VIII. During troublous times many of the old possessions passed away from the family, but though at one period reduced in position, they have ever maintained the rank of gentry, and have always held landed estates from the deeds of which their descent can be proved.

A family of the name of Sibthorp or Sybthorpe, was resident for several generations at Ludham and Northwalsham, co. Norfolk, which is more than presumed to have been descended from the Sibthorps of Sibthorp, although there is difficulty in discovering from which individual ancestor they derived. In the Harleian MSS., in the British Museum, there are several pedigrees of this branch.

The first member of the family on record is in Domesday Book—folio, vol. i. p. 287—where are enrolled the names of Robertus de Sibetorp, and Willielmus de Sibetorp.

In Throton's History of Nottinghamshire, the early pedigrees of the family, descended from the above Robertus, is given, with many other particulars as to their connections, possessions, and employments. In the time of William the Conqueror, Robertus de Sibetorp held the manor of Sibetorp, and from it, doubtless, took his surname. His son, Roberts de Sibethorp, was father of Radulphus de Sibthorp, witness to a deed 1120. Then follow Randulphus de Sibthorp, 1160; Robertus de Sibthorp, 1189; Richard de Sibthorp (temp. Richard I); Radulphus de Sibthorp, 1209; Robert de Sibethorp, witness to a deed of gift, same year; Henry de Sibthorp, of note, in 1277; and Hugo de Sibthorp, 1290. Reginald de Sibthorp was a person of note in 1326; and so was Thomas de Sibthorp, rector of Beckingham, Lincolnshire, who lived a little after that time. The De Sibthorps occur frequently for several generations after, in the public and county records; and in the British Museum, Add. MSS. 6668, p. 199, the following document is preserved:—

["Pl. de Banc., pasch, 15 E 3, vol. 230.]—Symon de Sibthorpe (15 Edward III) claimed the advowson of Sibethorpe against Thomas de Sibethorpe, whereof the said Simon's ancestor, Robert, was seized in the time of King Richard I, and presented one Richard de Sibethorpe, his clerk, who was admitted and instituted in the said King Richard I, his reign, from which Robert, the right descended to Ralph, his brother and heir, who had William de Sibethorp, his son and heir (who held halfe a knight's fee there in the time of HENRY III, and afterwards a fourth part), which William had issue, William, the father of Simon de Sibethorpe, the plaintiff. But Thomas pleaded that the forenamed Robert gave the said advowson to the Knights Templars, who presented John de la Temple, Anthony Fraunceys, and Mr. William de la Breure, their clerks successively, in the time of HENRY III, and Gilbert de la Breure; upon his resignation, Mr. Steven de Kynardesey, in the reign of King E. I, and after the annulling of the order of the Knights Templars, this advowson, and 2s. 6d. rent, came to the hands of the Knights' Hospitallers, of St. John's of Jerusalem, whereupon Tho. le Archer, then prior upon the resignation of the said Mr. Stephen presented one William Aslacby, his clerk, &c.—THO. Lineage.—The family of Simpson of the Forest of Knaresborough, and of Knaresborough, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, can deduce its pedigree authentically from the time of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR, King of England. ARCHIL, a Saxon thane, living in that reign and in the reign of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, held large estates in Yorkshire before the Norman Conquest, but on that event, he was dispossessed of the greater portion, and allowed to retain that which he held as a King's thane, and which included Wipeleie, in Vil-de-Clynte, where he afterwards resided. From him derived, sixth in descent, WILLIAM FIL. ADE OF CLYNTE, living A.D. 1274, whose son SYMON FIL. Lineage.—The family of Skelton, of Armathwaite Castle, in the west of Cumberland, was one of great antiquity; and so far back as the time of RICHARD II, we find by a deed dated 14 Nov. 14th year of that monarch's reign, that Sir Robert de Mulcaster then granted to St. Clement de Skelton "totam terram meam a Threpland."

RICHARD SKELTON, Esq. son of John Skelton, Esq. of Armathwaite, and grandson of Richard Skelton, Esq. of the same place, sold the castle and estate of Armathwaite to William Sanderson, Esq. in 1712. Mr. Skelton left a numerous issue.

The Skeltons of Branthwaite Hall were a junior branch of the Skeltons of Armathwaite, derived from RICHARD SKELTON, who was present at Agincourt with HENRY V, and served the office of high sheriff of Cumberland. He was younger son of JOHN DE SKELTON, who m. in 1422 the heiress of the Branthwaite estate, and acquired that property, where his descendants continued to reside till about 1727. Its then possessor was HENRY SKELTON, Esq of Branthwaite Hall, gen. in the army, and governor of Portsmouth. This officer was engaged in Flanders, and also in Scotland in 1745; in the former country his life was saved by his aide-de-camp, Capt. James Jones, who shot a dragoon as he was on the point of cutting down the general. The latter, who d. 1757, did not forget this, for on the opening of his will, it was found that he left Lineage.—The family of Skene is one of great antiquity in Aberdeenshire, where it always maintained the rank of free barons, and takes its name from the barony and castle of Skene, situate in the Earldom of Mar, and co. Aberdeen, which barony remained in the possession of the Skenes of Skene, from the middle of the 13th century to the year 1827, when, by the death of the last Skene of Skene, the estates passed to his nephew and heir, the Earl of Fife. Tradition asserts that the Skenes of Skene are descended from the Robertsons of Strowan.

JAMES SKENE, 2nd son of Alexander Skene, of Skene, purchased the estate of Wester-Corse, in Aberdeenshire, and had by Janet, dau. of Lumsden of Cushine, ten sons,

I. JAMES, ancestor of the Skenes of Wester-Corse and Ramore

The 7th son,

JOHN SKENE, afterwards SIR JOHN SKENE, of Curriehill, lord-clerk-register, was a celebrated lawyer in the reign of JAMES VI, and was well known for his connection with the regium majestatem. He m. Helen, dau. of Sir John Somerville, of Camnethan, related to the royal family, by whom he had three sons,

JAMES (Sir), his heir.

The eldest son,

SIR JAMES SKENE, of Curriehill, president of the College of Justice, s. his father in 1617, and was, by CHARLES I, created a baronet of Nova Scotia, by a patent which is not dated, but which is recorded in the Register of Signatures, 16 Jan. 1630. He m. Janet, dau. of Sir John Johnston, of Hilton, by whom he had two sons,

JOHN, who s. him. THOMAS, d. unm.

The elder son,

SIR JOHN SKENE, 2nd Bart. of Curriehill, s. his father in 1633. He sold the estate of Curriehill in 1637, and having levied a regiment of men upon his own charges, he went to Germany, and d. there without issue.

We will now revert to

ROBERT SKENE, brother of Sir John Skene, of Curriehill. He possessed the small property of Potterton, Aberdeenshire. He was s. by his eldest son,

Arms—Gu., three skenes or daggers, paleways, in fesse, arg.,

* The Skenes of Hallyards, in Mid-Lothian, must not be confounded with the Skenes of Hallyards, in Fife, who still exist in the male line. In the charter granted to Alex. Skene, of Skene, 1623, the barony of Skene is settled upon the heirs male of his body, failing whom upon Andrew Skene, of Chapelton, and his heirs male. This Andrew was his cousin-german, afterwards Sir Andrew Skene, of Hallyards, in Fife, who was s. in that barony by his eldest son JOHN, and he in his turn by his eldest son JOHN, who lost Hallyards in the troubles consequent upon the overthrow of the Stuart dynasty. This John had a very large family, of whom the 5th son, JAMES, was the only one whose male issue was in existence posterior to 1750. He participated in all the attempts to restore the Stuarts before 1736, when he died. His eldest son, PHILIP, capt. 27th foot, lieut.-governor of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, and col. of militia in America, where he owned the vast estate of Skenesborough (now Whitehall) on Lake Champlain, which he lost through his loyalty in the rebellion, left an only son, ANDREW PHILIP, capt. 9th dragoons, and major of brigade, who d. at Durham, in 1826, leaving with other issue, 1 PHILIP-ORKNEY, lieut. royal engineers; 2 DAVID-JAMES, lieut. 4th dragoons; 3 ANDREW-MOITZ, lieut. R.N. By the death of Alex. Skene, of Skene, in 1827, the male representation of that family devolved, according to the charter of 1623 before-mentioned, upon Lieut. P.-O. Skene as nearest heir-male; and afterwards, he and his 2nd brother having both d. s. p., upon Lieut. A. M. Skene, who d. 1849, leaving an only son,

Lineage.—There is every reason to believe that the family of Smythe became settled at Hilton at the time of the Conquest; but as the Court Rolls extend only as far back as 1327, temp. Edward II., there is no documentary proof of the fact beyond a charter, granted by Edward I, afterwards confirmed by Elizabeth, from which it appears that the family were regularly descended from ancestry of the paternal line and name from the first-named period. Several branches emanated from the parent stock, and held considerable possessions in the neighbourhood. The grandfather of the present representative,

Westcote's statement is confirmed by the family pedigree. We next find them holding lands in Satterleigh, where, in

Isabel-Florence.

Lineage.—The family of Spens is of great antiquity in Scotland, and in the opinion of some authors (founded on the usage by the Spens of the lion rampant of Macduff) derives from a younger son of the Earl of Fife.

There were many considerable free barons of the name of Spens, who made a good figure both at home and abroad, several centuries ago, but the lineage of Lathallan is documented for three or four generations before any of the others existed.

The Spenses of Kilspindy, sciens, undoubtedly, of Lathallan, became of distinction in the reigns of Kings James I and II, but are now extinct.

The Spenses of Bodham, in Aberdeenshire, have been free barons ever since the time of James III, and several other Spenses in the same co.; also the Spenses of Berryhole, in Fife, &c., &c., are all descended of Lathallan, which their armorial bearing testifies.

Count de Spens, who ranked amongst the first of the Swedish nobility, and was generalissimo of their forces, descended from the house of Wolmerston, a branch of Lathallan. The immediate ancestor of the family of Lathallan,

Henry de Spens, temp. Alexander III, was compelled, with most of the nobility and gentry of Scotland, to submit to King Edward III in 1266. From him, lineally descended

John Spens, of Lathallan, who was served and retoured heir to his father, Robert, in 1474. He m. Margaret, dau. of Patrick Dunbar, of Kilconquhar, son and heir of George, 12th Earl of March, and had two sons. The elder,

Alexander Spens, of the city of St. Andrew's, younger son of James Spens, of Lathallan, by Elizabeth Seton. He m. Catharine Alexander, dau. of the Baron of Skeddoway, and was s. by his son,

Thomas Spens, of Lathallan, living 1630, who m. Margaret, dau. of Nathaniel Moncrief, of Randerston, and had three sons and two daus. The elder surviving son, Howden, in Yorkshire, and have been the owners of considerable property in that lordship. Robert Spofforth, Esq. of Eastthorpe Hall, is still the owner of a large portion of the estate.

Before the portioning of England amongst the retainers of the Duke of Normandy, the lordship or manor of Spofforth, or Spofford (near Wetherby, Yorkshire), was held by a Saxon family of the same name. It is mentioned in Domesday, that Gamelbar. de Spofford held lands there, previous to the time of that survey, after which the Percys had a grant. The present family of Spofforth may be authentically traced to within a few miles of the place; and, from the scarcity and singularity of the name, there is no doubt they are descendants of the former possessors.

In 1265, Nicholas de Spofford lived in the neighbourhood, and in 1313, Roger de Spofford obtained a pardon from EDWARD II for his participation in the conspiracy of the Earls of Warwick, Lancaster, and Arundel, to expel Gaveston, the king's favourite. Friar Walter Spofford was Prior of Helaugh in 1320. Thomas Spofford, of Spofforth, was made Abbot of St. Mary's, York, 8 June, 1405, was mitred, and had a seat in Parliament. In 1422, he was elected Bishop of Rochester, but, being appointed by the Pope to the see of Hereford, he accepted the latter, 1422, built the palace, and resigned in 1448, when he returned to his abbey at York, where he died.

In Catwick church, York, is the following inscription:—"Orate pro animâ Domini Thomæ Spofford, Abatis Monasterii Beatæ Mariæ Ebor."

After this time the family became converts, and John Spofford was many years vicar of Silkiston, Yorkshire, from which he was ejected in 1663. John, his son, was driven, during the civil wars, with many of the old families, from that part of Yorkshire to America, where, as one of the Pilgrim Fathers, he was the founder of a large and influential family in Massachussetts, some of them having repeatedly represented the county in the States' senate.

After the Restoration, the family property was in Wistow Lordship, Turnhead Hall, and Barlby Manor, Yorkshire; and alliances were made with the Fawkeses, Nixons, Thornhills, Lacys, Lodges, Listers, &c. They migrated, subsequently, to Howden, and have since intermarried with some of the most influential families in the district.

Lineage.—The Stanleys rank amongst the most ancient and influential families in the kingdom. They were of consequence, says Camden, half a century before the Conquest, and they have invariably held an eminent place in history. The branch of which we are more immediately about to treat has been located in the north for several centuries, and the most ancient of their estates in Cumberland have descended through an unbroken succession of father and son, over a period of not less than five hundred years to the present proprietor.

John Stanleigh, 2nd son of John Stanleigh, Lord of Stanley and Stourton, and younger brother of Sir William Stanley, ancestor of the noble house of Derby, purchased lands at Greswithen, in Cumberland, and represented the city of Carlisle in Parliament, 20th Edward III. His grandson,

Nicholas Stanleigh, of Greswithen, marrying Constance, dau. and heiress of Thomas de Awsthwaite, Lord of Awsthwaite, acquired that manor (now denominated Dalegarth), as appears by deed dated anno 1345. In 1388, Nicholas Stanleigh obtained by purchase, the manor and demesne of Ponsonby. He was s. by his son,

He was present at the actions of Ghuznee (wounded), Maharajpore, Moodkee, Ferozeshuhur, and Sobraon (two medals, two clasps, and bronze star). He m. 3 March, 1853, Caroline-Sophia, dau. of the late John Hamilton, Esq., LL.D. of Dunboyne Castle, co. Meath.

Lineage.—This name has held a distinguished position in the civil and ecclesiastical annals of the empire, in the reigns of Henry III and Edward I, the earliest approximations to this surname record, "de Stanhowe," in Norfolk, "de Stanewe," in Devonshire and "de Stanhou," in Kent. With reference to the Kentish spelling, it may be remarked that Master Richard "de Stanhou" was one of those whom Edward II summoned to his council in 1312—contemporaneous with this surname, that of "Stonehouse" is discovered. In 1243, the family "de Stonehouse" was living in Devonshire, and in 1291, William "de Stonhouse" was seised of Upperton, in the same county. In 1307, it was found, on inquisition, that Thomas de la Stonhouse died seised of property at Stonehouse, with certain chief rents in Cornwall, and at the Parliament of Bippon, in this reign, Henry Stonhouse represented the borough of Guildford, in Surrey (Peynne's Rep. v. iv. p 998). There was also at this time a town of Stonehouse, in Gloucestershire. In 1346, Thomas, son of Ralph de Stonhouse, is mentioned as one of the adherents of Edward the Black Prince. In the reign of Henry VI, it is recorded that John Stonehouse affected to sell his lands of Stonehouse, &c., to the disherison of his brother, William Stonehouse.

In the reign of Henry VIII, Robert Stonhouse, of Barston, in Kent, m. a dau. of — Roydon, of Essex, and their son was George Stonhouse, who, in 1578, was placed on a very important state commission, in two years after which, he purchased the manor of Radley, in Berkshire. He died soon after, leaving William Stonhouse, his eldest son, created the 1st baronet of this family in 1628, and lineal ancestor of the present Sir Timothy-Vansittart Stonhouse, whose arms and crest are identical with those of the Stannuses of Ulster. From this house of Radley, it would appear that the name passed, at the close of the 16th century, into Scotland, and that such was its origin in that country, we learn from the result of searches in the Office of Arms at Edinburgh, as well as from the inquisitions of Scotland, temp. JAMES I. The first mention of the latter family, in Ireland, is found in a patent of naturalisation (consequent upon the plantation of Ulster, by JAMES I), dated 1618, and granted to WILLIAM STANEHOUSE, of Carbolaie, whereby all the rights and privileges of an English subject were fully secured to him and other persons of consideration. The son of this William was

JAMES STANNUS, of Carlingford, the principal part of which town and manor he was seised of, including several townlands. His interment in the church of Knock, co. Down, previous to 1683, is recorded in a very interesting family document. His son,

WILLIAM STANNUS, also styled "of Carlingford," was high sheriff of Louth in 1704. It is to be remarked that, on the sheriff's roll, the name is spelt "Stanehouse." He m. Mabella, sister of Ephraim Dawson, of Dawson's Court (formerly Emo), and M.P. for the Queen's county, whose, grandson was created Earl of Portarlington. William Stannus, or Stanehouse, d. in 1717, having, by his will (in Prerog. Office), bequeathed "all his estates of purchase and inheritance, and all his leasehold interests," to his eldest son, James, and was buried in Carlingford Ceurch. The issue of this William were,

I. JAMES, b. 1686, M.P. for Carlingford in 1713, in lieu of his uncle, Ephraim Dawson, M.P. for the Queen's county. In 1721, he served as high sheriff of Louth, in which year he d., and was buried at Carlingford.

II. WILLIAM, b. 1695, M.P. for Carlingford in 1721, on the death of his brother James, and M.P. for Portarlington in 1728, which last place he continued to represent until his death in 1732. By his will of that year, he directed his interment at Carlingford, in the burial place of his family, bequeathed his estates, real and personal, to his son Ephraim, leaving legacies to his nephew, Thomas Tipping (son of Mabella Stannus, &c.), and he appointed Thomas Tipping, the elder (her husband), and Faithful Fortescue his (testator's) grand-nephew, executors of the said will. William, the younger, had m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Hazelwood, Bart. of Wick, in Worcestershire, and had issue,

Thomas Tipping, and Mabella had also five daus., of whom the 2nd, Sophia, m. Thomas Palmer, father of Sir Roger Palmer, the 1st baronet of that line, and Elizabeth, the youngest, m. William Fortescue, of Newragh, 2nd son of Sir Thomas Fortescue, and had issue, five sons, one of whom, William-Henry, was created Lord of Clermont, while another son was Faithful Fortescue, hereinbove referred to in the will of William Stannus, jun., of 1732. It should also be here noted, that Mary, the younger dau. of the above William Fortescue, of Newragh, m. John Foster, of Dunleer, whose eldest son by her, Anthony Foster, was chief baron of the Irish Exchequer, and his eldest son, John, b. in 1740, was chosen speaker of the Irish House of Commons, in 1785. By these marriages, the family of Stannus became allied with the Fortescues and Fosters.

The representative of the elder or Carlton branch is the present Lord Beaumont.

Herton or Herman, Lord of Stapleton-on-Tees, became seised of that manor in 1062 His descendant was

Sir Miles Stapleton, Knt., who, having distinguished himself, temp. Edward I and II, in the wars of Gascony and Scotland, in the retinue of Edward, Prince of Wales, was summoned to parliament as a baron by the latter King in 1313. He d. in 1314, and was s. by his son,

Sir Nicholas Stapleton, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament in 1342. This nobleman in the time of Edward II, was involved in the insurrection of Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, and was fined 2,000 marks to save his life, but the fine was remitted in the 1st of Edward III. He m. Sibill, dau. and heir of Sir John de Bella-aqua (Beaulieu or Bellew), the last Baron of that name, by his wife Laderina, sister and co-heir of Peter Bruce, the 6th and last Baron of Skelton Castle In her right he became Lord of Carlton, which is still the property of the elder branch of the family; and he was also Lord of Wighill at his death in 1343. He had issue,

i. Miles.
ii. Gilbert, a priest of St. Leonard's Hospital, at York.

The elder son,

Sir Miles Stapleton, Knt., 3rd baron, summoned to parliament in 1358, was one of the first Knights of the Garter, at the foundation of the order by Edward III. This nobleman was a person of great note at the period in which he lived. He participated in many of the French campaigns of Edward III, and when Philip, brother of the King of Navarre came to England to obtain help, he was chosen as "an expert soldier," and marched under his banner to within nine leagues of Paris, when the French were obliged to enter into a truce. He was high sheriff of Yorkshire, in 1353, and again in 1355, for five years consecutively. He m. the dau. and heir of John, Duke of Britanny and Earl of Richmond, by that nobleman's marriage with Beatrice, dau. of King Henry III, and d. in 1373, leaving issue,

i. Sir Nicholas, whose son, Thomas, was 4th baron, but was never summoned to parliament, having d. the same year he inherited. Having left no issue, his sister, Elizabeth, wife of Sir Thomas Metham, became his heir, and the barony has since been vested in her descendants.

Sir Gilbert had issue,

i. Sir Miles Stapleton, of Bedale and Ingham, m. Joan, widow of Roger, Lord Strange, of Knockyn, and dau. and co-heir of Sir Oliver Ingham, of Ingham, in Norfolk, in whose right he became possessed of Ingham. This line terminated after several generations in two daus., Elizabeth, m. 1st, Sir Philip Calthorp; 2ndly, Sir John Fortescue, chief justice of England; and 3rdly, Sir Edward Howard, lord high admiral of England; and Joan, m. 1st, Christopher Harcourt, Esq. of Stanton Harcourt, 2ndly, Sir John Hudleston.
ii. Sir Bryan.

Sir Bryan Stapleton, K.G., of whom it is related that "the King of England and the King of Cyprus being present, he fought with the Saracen, faith for faith, whom by the grace of God and his valour he did kill. For which cause he did desire for the reward of his valour, of Edward III, then present, nothing else but that he and his heirs, in memory of the victory, should carry for their crest the head of a Saracen. For before this they had for their crest a pair of bat's wings." He accompanied the expedition of Edward III to Flanders in 1340, and was present at the siege of Tournay. He was also at the siege of Calais in 1346-7, and had probably fought at the battle of Cressy. He was made a Knight of the Garter in the 1st of Richard II, 1378. This Lord Lovel being attainted, the barony of Lovel was forfeited, and all his other honours, the baronies of Deincourt, Grey of Rotherfield, &c., but his sisters became heirs to their maternal uncle Viscount Beaumont. The representation of this line of the Stapyltons is the present Lord Beaumont.

For a person well spoken, comely and skilled in the languages, he is said to have had scarce an equal, except Sir Philip Sidney, and no superior in England." He commenced building a palace at Wighill, out of which arose his quarrel with Archbishop Sandes, for which he incurred a heavy fine and censure from the Star Chamber. "Appearing a man of vigour in mind and body," says Clarendon, "he was joined with Mr. Hambden and Lord Howard of Escrick in the committee appointed by the parliament to attend upon the King, Charles I, when he went into Scotland." He was also one of those who carried the parliament's answer to the King concerning the refusal to give up Hull. In 1647, he was one of the leaders of the presbyterian party, against whom charges were exhibited, and whom Clarendon mentions as "men of parts, interest, and signal courage, and heartily abhorring the intentions which they discerned the army to have." Starkie of Twiston.

THOMAS STARKIE, of Twiston, next brother of Edmund Starkie, first of Huntroyde, m. Alice, youngest dau. and co-heir of Richard Worsley, Esq., and by inquest, holden after the death of the last Worsley, about the year 1468, he was found to be seised of one-third of the manor of Morley, and one-half of the manor of Twiston, which last was held in socage of John de Dyneley, and continued in Alice's posterity, of which was

THOMAS STARKIE, of Twiston, b. in 1580, who m. Miss Miles, and d. in 1678, leaving a son,

JAMES STARKIE, who appears to have s. to the Twiston estates the year of his father's death. He d. himself in 1700, having been four times married, aged 103, or 105; for in the register of his burial the figure is indistinct. His widow survived him sixty years, and thus a period of 160 years must have elapsed between the birth of the husband and the death of the wife. It is equally remarkable that his first marriage was late in life, and that he had issue by his fourth when nearly 100 years old. By Sarah his 1st wife, dau. of the Rev. Richard Coore, of Tong, co. York, Mr. Starkie left a son,

THOMAS STARKIE, who m. Elizabeth Varley, of Laund, and was father of

JAMES STARKIE, who m. Alice Lawson, of Langcliffe, and had three sons, THOMAS; Richard-Lawson; and John, who m. Miss Paley, of Settle, and had issue (with four daus., Alice, m. to Mr. Bradbury, of Manchester; Anne, m. to Mr. Scott, of Settle; Mary, m. to Mr. Burn; and Eliza, deceased), five sons, viz., John, deceased; James, of the Strand, London (who m. in 1822, Miss Green, and has issue); Thomas, deceased; Richard, m.; and William-Paley. The eldest son of James Starkie and Alice his wife,

THE REV. THOMAS STARKIE, fellow of St. John's College, and sometime vicar of Blackburn, m. Anne, dau. of Thomas Yatman, and had two sons and two daus., THOMAS, Matthew, Cecilia, and Anne. The elder son,

THOMAS STARKIE, Esq., Queen's counsel, m. Lucy, dau. of the Rev. Thomas-Dunham Whitaker, of The Holme, vicar of Whalley (one of the best of our local historians), and had issue,

STARKY OF BROMHAM.

STARKY, JOHN-BAYNTUN, Esq. of Spye Park, Bromham, co. Wilts, b. 30 May, 1834; m. 14 July, 1857, Frances-Anne, 2nd dau. of the Rev. James-Hunt Grubbe, of Potterne, and has issue,

I. GEORGE-BAYNTUN, b. 4 April, 1858.
II. Walter-Bayntun, b. 18 March, 1861,
I. Eleanor-Bayntun.

Lineage.—Sidney, in his treatise on government, affirms that, in antiquity of possession and name, few of the nobility equal the family of Bayntun. From a very curious pedigree preserved in the Museum, it appears that, in the time of HENRY II, the Bayntuns were Knights of St. John of Jerusalem. Sir Henry Bayntun was Knight-Marshal to the King, an office of high authority in those days, and his second son Henry, a Knight of St. John, was slain in Bretagne, in 1201. Temp. HENRY IV, Sir Henry Bayntun, taking part with the Earl of Northumberland, was beheaded at Berwick; and in 1471, Sir Robert Bayntun fought against the King at Tewkesbury, was made prisoner, and attainted. The Bayntuns were long settled at Falston, Wilts, but, at the decease of Richard Beauchamp, Lord St. Amand,

JOHN BAYNTUN, Esq. (son of the attainted Sir Robert Bayntun), who was his cousin and heir, removed to Bromham, anciently the seat of the Roches. This John Bayntun, who was restored in blood, 19 HENRY VII, m. Jane, dau. of Thomas Digges, Esq. of Chilham, in Kent, and had issue. He d. 31 Oct. 1516, was buried in Bromham church, and s. by his son,

SIR EDWARD BAYNTUN, Knt. of Bromham, who rose high in favour with HENRY VIII, and was vice-chamberlain to three of his queens. His last male descendant,

JOHN BAYNTUN, Esq. of Bromham (son of Henry Bayntun, Esq. of Bromham, by Anne his wife, dau. and coheir of John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester; and grandson of Sir Edward Bayntun, C.B. of Bromham, by Stuarta his wife, dau. of Sir Thomas Thynne), m. Catherine Brouncker, but dying s. p. in 1716, was s. by his sister,

EDWARD ROLT, Esq. of Spye Park, Wilts, M.P. for Chippenham, groom of the bedchamber to the Prince of Wales, and finally surveyor of the Duchy of Cornwall. He assumed the additional surname of Bayntun, and was created a baronet in 1762, as Sir Edward Bayntun-Rolt, of Spye Park. He m. Mary Poynter, of Herriard, Hants, and had issue, ANDREW, his heir; and Constantia, m. to Richard Forster, Esq. Sir Edward d. Jan. 1800, and was s. by his only son, Lineage.—The family of Staunton,* which is of great antiquity, can be regularly traced from the time of the CONQUEROR, and there is no doubt of their having been settled in Nottinghamshire in the time of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. Lineage.—The family of Steele of Rathbride, in the co. Kildare, is a branch of one of the same name, whose seat was Giddy Hall, near Sandbach, in Cheshire. In the Harleian MSS. No. 2040, p. 240, in the British Museum, a brief pedigree of the family is given, which records that THOMAS STEELE, of Weston (temp. QUEEN ELIZABETH), had three sons, I. George, m. 1st, to Cath. Bolt, 2nd, to Miss Ford, of Ford Green, Staffordshire, by both of whom he had several children; II. RICHARD, of Sandbach, m. in 1602, to Letitia Shawe; and III. Lineage.—The descent of this family embraces a period of seven centuries and includes twenty generations. In early times, several distinguished families and individuals existed of the name of Stirling, who cannot be distinctly traced to a common ancestor with the ancient houses of Cawder and Keir, but who are presumed to have been of the same race. Stirling of Glenesk had great possessions in the shire of Forfar, and ended in an heiress, Catherine, who in 1365, m. Sir Alexander Lindsay, and whose son, Sir David Lindsay, of Glenesk, was created Earl of Crawford in 1398. Sir John de Stirling adhered to the English interest in the reign of King DAVID II. He was high in the favour of King EDWARD III, and was, by that monarch, summoned as a peer to parliament among the barons of England, from the year 1343 to 1370.

The families of Stirling of Cawder and Stirling of Keir can be traced to

WALTER DE STRIVELING, who is mentioned in a charter granted by DAVID I, King of Scotland, about the year 1150. He was proprietor of Edinhame in Teviotdale, and Cambusbarron in Stirlingshire, and was s. by his son,

PETER DE STRIVELING, of Edinhame and Cambusbarron, who is mentioned in a charter granted by King MALCOLM IV, in 1160. His son,

SIR ALEXANDER DE STRIVELING became possessed of the lands of Cawder near Glasgow in 1180. He was sheriff of Stirling. His son,

STRICKLAND OF SIZERGH.

STRICKLAND, WALTER-CHARLES, Esq. of Sizergh, co. Westmoreland, b. 5 Sept. 1825.

Lineage.—The first of the name of Strickland met with is in the reign of King JOHN, when Gilbert Fits Reinfrid having been compelled, on account of his involvement with the rebellious barons, to give hostages for his future conduct, which hostages were the sons, daus., and heirs of the principal mesne lords holding under the barons of Kendal, included amongst them the son and heir of SIR WALTER DE STIRKELAND. In the time of Hugh, bishop of Carlisle, who came to the see towards the beginning of the reign of King HENRY III, this Sir Walter had licence to keep a domestic chaplain in his family, within the parish of Morland, so as it should be of no prejudice to the mother church. Sir Walter Stirkland granted to the church of St. Mary's, York, and to the prior and monks of Wedeshal (which was a cell of the said abbey) four acres of land in the territory of Stirkland, moulter-free. The great-great-grandson of this Sir Walter

SIR WALTER DE STRICKLAND, was, in the 28th EDWARD I, with the King at the siege of Carlaverock, and, in the 1st and 6th of EDWARD II, was knight of the shire for Westmoreland, in the 9th of EDWARD III, Sir Walter obtained a grant to inclose his wood and demesne lands at Sizergh, and to make a park there, and to hold the same so inclosed to him and his heirs for ever. The great-grandson of this Sir Walter,

SIR THOMAS DE STRICKLAND, entered into agreement with HENRY V, dated 29 April, 1415, to serve the King in his wars in France during one year, and had the distinguished honour of bearing the banner of St. George at the ever-memorable battle of Azincourt. He was subsequently, 7 HENRY VI, M.P. for Westmoreland. His son and heir,

WALTER STRICKLAND, Esq. appears to have been a zealous Lancastrian, and of the forces he was enabled to raise, with their proper habiliments, we have a muster-roll yet extant, which seems to have been made out chiefly in respect of the border service. This Walter Strickland was s. by his son,

SIR THOMAS STRICKLAND, Knt., who m. Agnes Parre, dau. of William Parre, son of Sir Thomas Parre, and his wife, Elizabeth, one of the three sisters and co-heirs of Henry, Lord Fitz-Hugh, and was s. by his son, Florence.

Lineage.—This family was seated, at a date beyond record, on its manor of Strode, while occupying which it yielded eminent warrior-knights to Kings Henry III and Edward I; in the last of which reigns, Adam Strode, of Strode, was among the western chiefs, summoned to attend his sovereign with men-at-arms into Scotland. After continuing many descents at Strode, the family removed to the neighbouring seat of Newnham, which estate was acquired by the marriage, temp. Henry IV, of Sir John Strode, of Strode, with the co-heiress of Newnham. Their descendant and heir, Sir William Strode, Knt. of Newnham, m. Elizabeth Courtenay, sole child, by his wife, Joan, dau. of Sir Richard Fowhill, of Fowhilscombe, in Devon, of Sir Philip Courtenay, of Loughtor, descendant of the 1st Sir Philip Courtenay, of Powderham, younger son of Hugh Courtenay, 2nd Earl of Devon. His descendant and heir, Sir William Strode, Knt. of Newnham, celebrated in Prince's Devonshire Worthies, as "a person of great honour, worth, and esteeme in his county, who died a little before the civil war began," had, with numerous daus., "all very worshipfully married," three sons, I. Sir Richard Strode, Knt. of Newnham and of Chalmington, in Dorset, member for Plympton, in the parliament of 1640, and continuator of the line at Newnham; II. William Strode, Esq. of Meavy Church, who was "burgess for Beeralston in the parliament 3rd year of King Charles I, and then, 1629, by the said King, was committed to the Tower of London, with John Eliot and other members, where they continued to the parliament 1640, when the said William Strode sat again as a member for Beeralston, and was in that parliament impeached by the King as one of the five members;" and III. John Strode, Esq. of Tavistock, "a great favourite of the nobility and gentry, who spent much of his time about London, and was counted the best bowler in all England." The direct senior line of Strode terminated with the great-great-great-grandson of Sir William, M.P. in 1640, William Strode, Esq. of Newnham Park, who d. 27 Aug. 1767, when Newnham Park and estates passed to the heir male,

Richard Strode, Esq. of Boterford, son of William Strode, Esq., by his wife, Mary-Anne Cholwich, of Oldstone House, and grandson and heir of George Strode, Esq., thereof, son and heir of John Strode, Esq. of London, 2nd son of William Strode, Esq. of Ugborough, son and heir of Sampson Strode, rector of Dittisham, who d. in 1631, 10th son of William Strode, of Newnham, and Elizabeth Courtenay. This Richard Strode, Esq. of Boterford and Newnham Park, m. Admonition, dau. of Thomas Lear, Esq. of Sandwell, Devon, and had issue,

STRONG OF NETHER-STRONGE, NOW OF THE CHASE.

Strong, George, Esq. of The Chase, co. Hereford, M.D., J.P. and D.L., b. Jan. 1812; m. 17 Dec. 1839, Charlotte, only dau. and heir of John Cooke, Esq. of The Chase, and has issue,

I. Beatrice-Charlotte-Eleanor.
II. Gertrude-Pollexfen, deceased.
III. Mabel-Fiennes, deceased.
IV. Joan-Beresford.

Lineage.—The name of Stronge is a corruption from Straunge or Storange, branches of which family were at an early period seated in various counties of England. In the Calendar, Inquis. post mortem, we find Hugo Straunge, 1 Henry V, having estates near York; Bauldewin Straunge, co. Stafford, temp. Henry VI; and Johannes Straunge, armiger, in the cos. of Norfolk and Suffolk, 15th of the same reign. Gage's Hist. of Suffolk mentions John Straunge bequeathing certain lands in that co. a century earlier, A.D. 1378. The will of Johannes Stronge, of Coventre, bears date 1522. But Nether-Stronge, in Somersetshire, seems to have been the "cunabula gentis," the name occurring frequently in the records of that and the adjoining cos.

The Rev. William Strong, rector of More Critchel, co. Dorset, afterwards a famous preacher at Westminster Abbey, and buried there 4 July, 1654; though after the Restoration his remains were violently torn up by the populace; describes himself as "Durotrigensis," i. e. a native of Dorsetshire, and was no doubt of the Nether-Stronge family.

George Strong, of Chard, co. Somerset, 8 Elizabeth, seems to have been engaged in serge manufactures, the staple of those parts, and had issue, Thomas and Walter. The elder son,

Thomas Strong, of Chardstoke, left a son,

Melancthon Strong, the elder son, b. 1650, describes himself as of Nether-Stronge, and appears to have allowed himself to be drawn in to take part in the unfortunate rising and defeat of James, Duke of Monmouth. Immediately after the battle of Sedgemoor, near Bridgewater, on the 4th July, 1685, and the disastrous defeat which followed, he fled away on foot, disguised in the garb of a working artizan, with his tools, &c., to London, which he reached in great misery. STUBBS OF CANNOCK.

STUBBS, EDWARD-PHILIPPS, Esq. of Cannock, co. Stafford, 2nd son of the late George-John Stubbs, Esq. by Ellen his wife, dau. of Revell Philipps, Esq., of the family of Philipps of Picton Castle, co. Pembroke, b. 5 Jan. 1830; s. in April, 1840, under the will of his father, to a moiety of his estates in the parishes of Cannock, Walsall, and Blymhill, co. Stafford. Mr. Stubbs, is capt. of the Tettenhall or 30th company of Staffordshire rifle volunteers.

Lineage.—The family of Stubbs, though originally of Norfolk, is an ancient one in the co. of Stafford, where they have held from time to time considerable landed property, and intermarried with the Giffards, the Fowlers, and the Wightwicks. Unfortunately however, there is no pedigree recorded of them in the Heralds' Visitations, probably on account of Sampson Stubbs, of Butterton, presenting himself at the Visitation of 1664, and disclaiming any right to arms or gentry; paradoxical though it may appear, this circumstance alone is evidence of their good position at that period, for had there been no wish on the part of the heralds, or justification on that of the family to be ranked with the gentry of Staffordshire, there would have been no necessity for the disclaimer, or for a record of the fact in the heralds' books. It can only be accounted for by the natural surmise that this Sampson Stubbs was one of those, who not only have no pride of ancestry or taste for the assumption of the rights of gentry, but who have an objection to any public record of its details.

Much of the property of collateral branches of this family has been conveyed into others by heiresses; the Water-Eaton and Bloxwich estates, for instance, which had been "from time immemorial" in the family (vide BURKE'S History of the Commoners) passed by the marriage of the four co-heirs of Humphrey Stubbs to the families of Rann, Slaney, Brearley and Wightwick (vide article "Stubbs-Wightwick." BURKE'S Landed Gentry, ed. 1858). That of John Stubbs, of the Shaw, parish of Kingley, Gent., is now held by Mr. Philips-Stubbs of Heath House, by right of his great-grandmother, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of the said John Stubbs. The old manor house of Water-Eaton was formerly surrounded by a moat, which has lately been filled up, and the house undermined. The Water-Eaton branch descended from John Stubbs, by his wife, Jane Giffard, of the Chillington family, and the line of which we now particularly treat, is derived from a brother of this John Stubbs,

FRANCIS STUBBS, Esq. of Huntington, in the parish of Cannock. This gentleman in 1656 executed a settlement of his estates, eight or ten in number, on his son and heir (by Beatrice his wife) John Stubbs. This settlement is still in the possession of Mr. Stubbs. The son,

JOHN STUBBS, Esq. of Huntington, was father (by Beatrice his wife) of

FRANCIS STUBBS, Esq. of Huntington (who is mentioned in the settlement) who by Eleanor his wife, left issue, a son,

GEORGE STUBBS, Esq. of Huntington, father of

SURTEES OF DINSDALE.

Surtees, Henry-George, Esq., B.A., the devisee of a large personal property from his paternal grandfather, purchased Dinsdale, in the co. Durham, for which he was high sheriff in 1862.

Lineage.—Two ancient families, together with the little female convent of Nesham, possessed, in feudal times, a rich and picturesque peninsula in the co. of Durham, formed by the circling sweep of the Tees. Here, in the Norman era, the family of Sur-Tees, receiving its name from the banks of the river on which it settled, acquired the estate of Dinsdale in tenure of chivalry from the lords of Barnard Castle, and established its moated hall; while here, also, about the same period, the house of Conyers became aggrandized by the grant of Sockburn from the see of Durham.

Contiguous in residence and allied in blood, these two families are characterized by a remarkable similarity in their fluctuating fortunes. Both were of knightly degree; both are said to have enjoyed the rank of barons of the palatinate of Durham; both had extended influence and possessions beyond that co—the one in Northumberland, the other in Yorkshire; both saw their ancient patrimonies carried by female heirs to the bearers of other surnames, and mourned over the decline of the male representatives of their lines who, shorn of the inheritance of their forefathers, slowly gravitated towards the ranks of the yeomanry; and both, under happier auspices, shot forth, from their superannuated stocks, scions which gradually enriched by commerce, by the professions, and by alliances, and, in the latter family, adorned by literature, overshadowed with a fresh foliage and concealed their decay.

Edward Surtees, Gent. of Broad Oak, in the parish of Ovingham, co. Northumberland, admitted at the court of the manor of Whickham, co. Durham, 13 June, 1620, on acquiring some lands there, was a descendant of one of the branches of the Dinsdale family. SWAN OF BALDWINSTOWN.

SWAN, JOSEPH-PERCIVAL, Esq. of Baldwinstown, co. Wexford, capt. 3rd royal Middlesex militia, m. 1841, Catherine-Rhoda, 4th dau. of Benjamin Riky, Esq. of Ballynoe House, co. Carlow, and Rutland Square, Dublin, which lady d. in 1860. Capt. Swan s. his father in 1834, when a minor.

Lineage.—This family is of very ancient extraction, SWAIN, a Dane of noble ancestry, having early settled in the south-eastern portion of England. The Swans have been possessed of landed property in the counties of Kent and Derby since the CONQUEST, when we find their names occur twice in Domesday Book, as land owners, and as early as the reign of RICHARD II, they wrote themselves "Gentlemen," as appears from the ancient deeds. JOHN SWAN, of Southfleet, co. Kent, sat as Baron for the borough of Sandwich in the reigns of HENRY VI, EDWARD IV, and RICHARD III. The family held large possessions in the county of Kent, including the manors of Swanscombe, Densted, Sutton, Denton,* their chief seats being Hook Place, in Southfleet, the residence of the elder branch (from which Swan of Baldwinstown, claims descent), and Lydd, and afterwards Wye, and Denton Court. The places of location of the younger branch.† Both these English branches have become extinct, the former in the person of Sir William Swan, Bart., who d. s. p., 1712; the latter, in that of Edward Swan, son of Sir Francis Swan, of Denton Court, who d. s. p., 1643. Joseph-Percival Swan, the present possessor of Baldwinstown (the representative of the Irish branch), claims to be also the representative of the Southfleet family, being lineally descended from the John Swan, of that place, who, as above stated, sat for the borough of Sandwich, in the reigns of HENRY VI, EDWARD IV, and RICHARD III. (Joseph-Percival Swan, being the 8th in lineal descent from John Swan, who went to Ireland with Essex, in the reign of ELIZABETH, 1598, in a military capacity, and founded the Irish branch, and who was a great-great-grandson of the above John.)

JOHN SWAN sat as Baron for the borough of Sandwich, in Kent, in the reigns of HENRY VI, EDWARD IV, and RICHARD III, he acquired the manor of Swanscomb, and d. 1490. His son,

JOHN SWAN, Esq. presented the large bell to the church of Southfleet. He d. 1550, leaving a son,

THOMAS SWAN, Esq. who left at his decease, 1561, two sons,

I. William (Sir), Knt. of Hook Place, co. Kent, d. 1612, leaving a son, SIR THOMAS SWAN, Knt., who acquired, and afterwards disposed of the manor of Sutton, and d. seised of the manors of Densted and Swanscomb. He was knighted at Theobald's Inn, 11 Jan. 1630, and resided at Hook Place. His son, SIR WILLIAM SWAN, of Hook Place, Kent, was created a baronet 1666; he m. Hesther, dau. of MSS). The Grandorges, in allusion to their name, bore three ears of barley, a bearing which appears on several seals yet appendant to their charters at Bolton Abbey, and attached to an old deed in possession of the Swainsons. The last male representative of this family was Dr. John Grandorge, prebendary of Canterbury, who d. in 1729, and is buried in Magdalene College Chapel, Oxford.

SWINTON OF SWINTON.

SWINTON, JOHN-EDULPHUS, Esq. of Swinton Bank, co. Peebles, capt. Indian army, s. his father 2 June, 1852.

Lineage.—This family, originally Saxon, took its surname from the barony of Swinton, in Berwickshire.

EDULF or EDULPHUS DE SWINTON, of Swinton, who appears to have flourished in the reigns of MACBETH and MALCOLM CANMORE, left a son, LUCLPH or LUCLF, living in the beginning of king EDGAR, and was father of UDARD, sheriff of co. Berwick, temp. ALEXANDER I, who was s. by HERCULF, who obtained a charter from DAVID I, in which the three preceding proprietors of the lands and barony are named. He d. temp. MALCOLM IV, and was s. by

SIR ALAN DE SWINTON, who got a charter of the barony of Swinton from Bertram, prior of Coldingham, superior thereof in the reign of King WILLIAM the Lion. From him we pass to his descendant,

SIR JOHN SWINTON, a distinguished soldier and statesman, and high in favour with the Second and Third ROBERTS. His military achievements are recorded by the ancient Scottish writers. At the battle of Otterburn, 31 July, 1388, he had a chief command, and to his intrepidity the Scots were indebted for the great victory obtained over the English (although with the loss of Douglas), on that memorable field. The gallant bearing and heroic death of Sir John Swinton, at the fatal battle of Homildon, have afforded a subject for the poetic genius of Scott, and are the materials on which he founded the drama of "Halidon Hill." Sir John m. 1st, Margaret, Countess of Douglas and Mar, widow of William, 1st Earl of Douglas, but by that lady had no issue; and 2ndly, Lady Margaret Stewart, dau. of king ROBERT II, by whom he had a son,

SIR JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, a man of singular merit, and a soldier of as undaunted valour. At the battle of Beaugé, in France, in 1420, Swinton unhorsed the Duke of Clarence, the English general, brother of king HENRY V, whom he distinguished by a coronet set with precious stones, which the Duke wore around his helmet, and wounded him so grievously in the face with his lance, that he immediately expired.* Sir John afterwards fell at the battle of Verneuil. He m. 1st, Lady Marjory Dunbar, dau. of George, Earl of March; but she d. without issue. He m. 2ndly, his cousin-german, Lady Marjory Stewart, dau. of Robert, Duke of Albany. He was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN SWINTON, who d. circa 1493, leaving (with a dau., Margaret, who m. John Falside, and in her widowhood was prioress of the monastry of Elcho), a son and successor,

SIR JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, who m. 1475, Katharine Lauder, a dau. of the family of Bass, by whom he had, with other issue, a son,

JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, who m. 1518, Margaret, dau. of David Hume, of Wedderburn, and had issue, two sons and eight daus. He d. circa 1549, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, who m. 1552, his cousin Katharine, dau. of Robert Lauder, of Bass, and dying 1584, was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT SWINTON, sheriff of Berwickshire. He m. 1st, Katharine Hay, dau. of William, Lord Yester, by whom he had one son, JOHN, his heir, and a dau., Katharine, m. to Sir Alexander Nisbet, of that ilk. He m. 2ndly, 1597, Jean, sister of Patrick Hepburn, of White Castle, by whom he had two sons, ALEXANDER and Robert, and one dau., Helen, m. 1628, to John Hepburn, of Smeaton. Swinton d. 1628, and was s. by his son,

JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, who dying unm. 1633, was s. by his brother,

SIR ALEXANDER SWINTON, of that ilk, sheriff of Berwick, who m. 1620, Margaret, dau. of James Home, of Framepath, a cadet of the family of Home, and had issue, (with five daus.) five sons., viz., I. JOHN, his heir. II. Alexander, Lord Mersington. III. Robert, killed at the battle of Worcester, ex parte Regis, attempting to carry off Cromwell's standard. IV. James. V. George, of Chesters, and VI. David, of Loughton. Sir Alexander d. 1652, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, appointed in 1649, one of the cols. for Berwickshire, and chosen one of the committee of estates, and made a commissioner for plantation of kirks, 11 March, that same year. CROMWELL, when in Scotland, carried Swinton a prisoner to England, and had him with him at the battle of Worcester, where he was only a spectator; however, he was forfeited by the convention of estates in absence, and without proof, anno 1651. He m. 1st, 1645, Margaret Stewart, dau. of William, Lord Blantyre, by whom he had three sons and one dau. He m. 2ndly, Francisca Hancock, widow of Arnot Sommans, but by her had no issue. He d. 1679, and was s. by his eldest son,

ALEXANDER SWINTON, of that ilk, who dying unm., was s. by his brother,

SIR JOHN SWINTON, of that ilk, who resided in Holland during the forfeiture, and was a considerable merchant there. He returned to Britain, at the Revolution, and in the year 1690, the decree of forfeiture was rescinded, and the family estate was restored to him per modum justitiæ. He was a member of the Union Parliament, and was appointed one of the commissioners of equivalent. Mr. Symons, who is recorder of the borough of Saltash, s. his father in 1832.

Lineage.—This family deduces its descent from the Counts of Avranches, in Normandy, and is entitled, in point of antiquity and its alliances, to rank with the highest in the co. of Cornwall; though, owing to the civil wars (in which it embraced the royal cause), and to the subdivision rendered necessary by the populousness of several generations, its present estates in and around Crowan, Wendron, Botus-Fleming, St. Minver, Tintagel, and Stoke-Climsland, together with those in Dalwood, Yarnscombe, St. Giles-in-the-Wood, and various places round about Torrington and Barnstaple, in Devonshire, are but a tithe of its former possessions in the western counties; while nearly all its landed property in Norfolk, Essex, Hertfordshire, and Buckinghamshire, the greater part of which was conferred at the CONQUEST, has now passed into other hands. (For the early part of the pedigree, refer to FITZ-SIMON of Tremayne and Tregarthen.)

The founder in England of this ancient house was

SIMON, LORD OF SEINT-SEVER, in Normandy, younger brother of Richard Gos, Viscount of Avranches, who accompanied Duke WILLIAM in 1066, fought at Hastings, and was rewarded with grants of land in Norfolk and Essex. II. Charles-Joseph-Hill, b. 29 Nov. 1849.

II. Lucretia-Anne.

Lineage.—The Tardys are descended from an ancient "famille de gentilhommes," resident for many generations previous to the Revolution at "la Tremblade" on the Charente, in the province of Saintonge. Several of them became early adherents to the doctrines of Calvin, sharing in many of the trying scene in which the Huguenots were engaged, one having fallen (in their own neighbourhood, on the Charente) in the engagement at Jarnac, when the Huguenots, under the Prince de Conde, were defeated by the forces under the Duke d'Anjou.

JACQUES TARDY, the ancestor of the family settled in Ireland, escaped from that conflict, and was long a faithful adherent of Jeanne d'Albert, and a follower of her son, Prince Henry of Navarre,

After the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, this family again suffered severely, but did not then, like so many others, abandon France, continuing long afterwards to encounter the odium and persecution the profession of their faith entailed.

About 1746, M. ELIE TARDY entered the navy as a midshipman, then a mere lad, and was engaged in the action off Belisle, with the English under Lord Hawke, when he was wounded severely. Devotedly attached to the religious principles of his race, he had suffered so much from the intolerance of his brother officers, all members of the old noblesse, that he was glad to retire from the service, and determined, like many, to emigrate. He disposed of his property, and about 1760, settled in Dublin.

In 1772 M. Tardy m. in Dublin, Anne, dau. of a brother refugee, M. Jean du Bedat, then a merchant of eminence (whose great-grandson, Peter du Bedat, Esq. is now chief cashier of the Bank of Ireland). M. Tardy succeeded his father-in-law as trustee of the French church of St. Peter's, in Dublin, the management of the affairs of that body principally devolving upon him.

The issue of that marriage was three sons, Francis, Elias, and JAMES. Mr. Francis Tardy d. without issue, as did Elias, upon his estate in the Island of Trinidad.

JAMES TARDY, Esq., the 3rd son, devoted his time and fortune to the study and advancement of natural history, becoming the most eminent Irish entomologist, and founding a collection which still bears his name, and at present mainly forms the Museum of Trinity College, Dublin. James Tardy m. 1813, Mary-Anne, dau. of James Johnston, Esq. of Fir House, co. Dublin, and Corkerran, Aughnamullen, co. Monaghan, by Jane-Lucretia his wife, dau. of Launcelot Fisher, Esq. whose wife, Margaret Brett, was 4th in descent from the marriage of Dr. Marsh, Archbishop of Armagh, with Lady Lucretia Hyde, sister of ANNE HYDE, Queen of JAMES II.

In 1650, James Johnston, of Annandale, in Dumfriesshire, settled at Gilford, co. Down, where he m. Mary Galbraith, a lady of fortune, by whom he acquired the Corkerran estate at Aughnamullen, in Monaghan, still held by this family of Johnstons. Lineage.—MR. D'ALTON, in his History of Ireland and Annals of Boyle (vol. i., p. 154), states that the family "of Tenison or Tenyson, derives its origin from England, where, at a very remote period, it is traceable in the records and history of the country. So early as in the reign of EDWARD I, it was represented in Oxfordshire, in the persons of Henry, John, and William 'Tynesende,' mentioned in the hundred rolls of that time Passing thence eastward, the name was subsequently established in Cambridgeshire and Norfolk."

About the year 1586, was born in the Isle of Ely,

TENNYSON-D'EYNCOURT OF BAYONS MANOR.

TENNYSON-D'EYNCOURT, GEORGE-HILDEYARD, Esq. of Bayons Manor, and Usselby Hall, co. Lincoln, J.P. and D.L., Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, b. 10 July, 1809, s. his father, the late Rt. Hon. Charles Tennyson-D'Eyncourt, 21 July, 1861.

Lineage.—The most compendious mode of stating the lineage of this family will be to set forth the allegations of a petition, prepared and verified at the Heralds' College, and presented by Mr. Tennyson to King WILLIAM IV, in 1835, claiming the name and arms of d'Eyncourt. The first ground of claim was as follows:—"The petitioner stated that he was the only son and heir of Michael Tennyson, Esq., by Elizabeth his wife, dau., and at length heir of George Clayton, Esq. of Grimsby, co. Lincoln, by Dorothy his wife, dau. and co-heir of Christopher Hildeyard, Esq. of Kelstern, co. Lincoln. That this Christopher Hildeyard was grandson and heir of Henry Hildeyard, of Winestead, in Holderness, who intermarried with the Lady Anne, eldest dau. of Francis Leke, 1st Earl of Scarsdale and Baron d'Eyncourt of Sutton, and sister of Nicholas, 2nd Earl of Scarsdale and Baron D'Eyncourt of Sutton, which dignities became extinct in the year 1736, upon the decease, without issue, of Nicholas, 4th Earl of Scarsdale, grandson of the aforesaid Nicholas, 2nd Earl of Scarsdale, and Baron d'Eyncourt of Sutton. That in consequence of the failure of all issue of the said George Clayton and Dorothy his wife, except the issue of their said daughter, Elizabeth, the wife of Michael Tennyson, of whom Mr. Tennyson was the only son and heir, and in consequence of the total failure of issue of the said Nicholas, 2nd Earl of Scarsdale and Baron d'Eyncourt of Sutton, and of the heirs male of the body of the aforesaid Francis, 1st Earl of Scarsdale and Baron d'Eyncourt of Sutton, the petitioner, Mr Tennyson, in right of such descent, represented, as co-heir, the said Francis, 1st Earl of Scarsdale and Baron d'Eyncourt of Sutton, and had always borne, quarterly, the arms of the said Francis, Earl of Scarsdale and Baron d'Eyncourt of Sutton, in right of such his inheritance."

The second ground of claim was thus set forth:—"That Mr. Tennyson's ancestor, the aforesaid Christopher Hildeyard, intermarried with Jane, dau. of George Pitt, Esq of Strathfieldsaye, co. Hants, by Jane his wife, eldest dau. and co-heir of John Savage, Earl Rivers, by Catherine his wife, dau., and at length eldest co-heir of William, Baron Morely and Monteagle, who was the heir and representative of William Lovel, Baron Lovel de Morley, who was summoned to parliament in the reign of King EDWARD IV, and which William Lovel, Lord de Morley, was ultimately heir male of William, Lord Lovel, of Tichmarsh, by Alice his wife, Baroness d'Eyncourt, dau. of John, Baron d'Eyncourt of Blankney, and at length sole heiress of her said father, and of her brother, William, Baron d'Eyncourt, of Blankney, the last heir male of that ancient and noble family." The petition concluded by stating—"That the ancient name of d'Eyncourt, inherited through a long and illustrious descent by Mr. Tennyson's ancestor, the said Alice d'Eyncourt, had become extinct, until revived as aforesaid in the person of Mr. Tennyson's said ancestor, in another line of descent, Francis, created Baron d'Eyncourt, of Sutton, and afterwards Earl of Scarsdale, of which said Francis he represented the eldest dau. and co-heir, and, accordingly, in order to commemorate such his lineal descent from the said ancient and noble family of d'Eyncourt, Barons D'Eyncourt of Blankney, and his representation in blood, as co-heir of the Earls of Scarsdale, Barons D'Eyncourt of Sutton, which descents were united in his person he prayed permission to take the name and arms of d'Eyncourt."

There appears to have been a peculiar propriety in renewing the name of d'Eyncourt in a descendant of that ancient house. Camden, in his Britannia (vol. i., p. 559), after referring to this family, as having flourished in a continued succession, from the coming in of the Normans to the time of HENRY VI, and then to have failed for want of an heir male of William, 13th Lord d'Eyncourt, adds—"I was the more willing to take notice of this family, that I might in some measure answer the desire of Edmund Baron d'Eyncourt, who was so very earnest to preserve the memory of his name, that having no issue male, he petitioned King EDWARD II for liberty to make over his manors and arms to whomsoever he pleased; for he imagined that both his name and arms would go to the grave with him, and was very solicitous to have them survive and be remembered. Accordingly, the king gave him a patent for that end. Yet this surname, for aught I can find, is now quite extinct, and would have been forgotten for ever, if the memory of it had not been preserved in books."

Camden does not quite correctly state the licence. It is extant, and may be found, printed at length, in RYLEY'S Plac. Parl (p. 547). It is dated 23 Feb., 7 EDWARD II, and enabled Edmund, Baron d'Eyncourt, to settle his lands upon his grandson, William, 2nd son of his eldest son, John d'Eyncourt, in exclusion of Isabel, the female heir, she being the only child of Edmund, eldest son (then deceased) of the said John d'Eyncourt, which Isabel afterwards d. without issue; and this leads us to trace the family of d'Eyncourt, who were formerly barons by tenure, until summoned to parliament by writ, 22 EDWARD I.

WALTER DE AYNCOURT,* de Eyncourt, or d'Eyncourt, a noble Norman, one of the distinguished companions in arms of the CONQUEROR, was cousin to Remigius, bishop of Lincoln, who built the cathedral there, and obtained as his share of the spoil, sixty-seven lordships in several cos., of which many were in Lincolnshire, where Blankney was his chief seat, and the head of his feudal barony. He had two sons, William and Ralph. WILLIAM, probably the eldest, while receiving his education in the court of King WILLIAM RUFUS, d. there, as appears by an inscription on a plate of lead, found in the churchyard, near the west door of Lincoln Cathedral, before Dugdale, published his Baronage, which contains an engraving of the plate, still preserved in the library of that church. From this inscription it seems that William was descended from the royal family, probably through his mother.

RALPH D'EYNCOURT, 2nd baron, son of Walter, s. him. He founded Thurgarton Priory, co. Notts, and was s. by his son,

WALTER, 3rd baron, who, with his son, Oliver, fought on the side of King STEPHEN, in the battle of Lincoln, 1141. Walter was s. by his other son,

JOHN, 4th baron, who m. Ann, dau. of Ralph Murdac, and was s. by his son,

OLIVER, 5th baron, who, by his wife, Anabella, had a son,

OLIVER, 6th baron, who m. Nicola, granddau. of Nicola de la Haye, a lady of large possessions in Lincolnshire, by her husband, William Fitzernest, and was s. by their son,

JOHN, 7th baron, who m. Agnes de Neville (whose 1st husband was Richard de Percy), and was s. by their son,

EDMUND, 8th baron, who obtained that remarkable licence, above-mentioned, from EDWARD II. He signed (12 Feb. 1301, 29 EDWARD I), the celebrated letter sent by the barons, assembled in parliament at Lincoln, to Pope BONIFACE VIII, denying his jurisdiction in temporal affairs, and denying that Scotland was a fief of the Roman see. He had two sons, John and William, who were with the feudal army at Carlisle, 29 EDWARD I, in the place of their father and figure in the roll of Cariaverock, where John, it is said, "mult bien fist son devoir." He d. in his father's lifetime, and, subsequently, William, a commander of distinguished valour, was killed, 23 June, 1314, 7 EDWARD II, before the Castle of Stirling, on the eve of the battle of Bannockburn. Baron Edmund's eldest son, John, left three sons, Edmund, who also d. in the baron's lifetime; William (afterwards 9th baron); and John. Edmund, the grandson, left a dau., Isabel, and the object of the above-mentioned licence was, to vest the estates in her uncle, William, next brother of her father, Edmund, in order to prevent the barony descending to her, and thus passing, in case of her marriage, to another name and family. The youngest brother, John, represented Lincolnshire in parliament, 11 EDWARD III, and Nottinghamshire, 14 EDWARD III. Baron Edmund d. 20 EDWARD II, at a very advanced age. On his decease, his son, John, and his grandson, Edmund, being dead, and his great-grandau, Isabel, being also dead, without issue,

WILLIAM, 9TH LORD D'EYNCOURT, s. his grandfather, when 26 years of age, as heir by descent, as well as by virtue of the licensed entail. He was an eminent warrior and active servant of King EDWARD III, through the glorious period of his reign, participating in the immortal achievements of that era in France and Scotland, and on 17 Oct. 1346, he was one of the commanders in the famous battle of Neville's Cross, near Durham. He attended Queen PHILIPPA, as her guard in the field, prior to that battle, and to him was confided the custody, in Lincolnshire, of JOHN, king of France, taken prisoner at Poictiers. Lord d'Eyncourt d. 3 June, 1364, aged 64. He m. Millicent, dau. of William, Lord Roos, of Hamlake. William, his eldest son, m. Margaret, dau. of Adam de Welle, and d. in his father's lifetime, leaving an only son, who s. his grandfather as

WILLIAM, 10TH LORD D'EYNCOURT. He m. Alice, dau. of John, Lord Neville, of Raby and Brancepeth, co. Durham, by Maud, dau. of Henry, 2nd Lord Percy, which Alice was sister of Ralph Neville, 1st Earl of Westmoreland, who, having m. Joan, half-sister of King HENRY IV, and being, through their dau., Cecily, Duchess of York, grandfather of EDWARD IV, and RICHARD III, the d'Eyncourt family became intimately allied with both the lines of York and Lancaster, and the blood of those royal houses was afterwards brought to their posterity, as hereafter explained, by the marriage of Mr. Tennyson's ancestor, Catherine, co-heiress of Morley and Monteagle, with John Savage, Earl Rivers, and that of Francis, Lord d'Eyncourt, Earl of Scarsdale, with Anne Cary, of which marriage Mr. Tennyson was co-heir, through the eldest dau. William, 10th baron, d. 5 RICHARD II, 1381, and was s. by his son,

RALPH, 11TH LORD D'EYNCOURT, who, dying an infant, s. p., was s. by his brother,

JOHN, 12TH LORD D'EYNCOURT, who m. Johanna, dau. and sole heiress of Robert de Grey, 5th Baron Grey, of Rotherfield, and d. 7 HENRY IV, leaving issue,

WILLIAM, 13TH LORD D'EYNCOURT, his son and heir, and two daus., ALICE and MARGARET. This nobleman, who was also, in right of his mother, Baron Grey, of Rotherfield, m. Elizabeth, sister of Viscount Beaumont, but d. s. p. in 1422, 1 HENRY VI, leaving Alice (Mr. Tennyson's ancestor), aged 18, and Margaret, aged 17, his sisters and co-heirs. Margaret m. Ralph, 4th Lord Cromwell, of Tattershall, co. Lincoln, and d. s. p. 15 Sept. 1455, 33 HENRY VI, leaving her sister,

ALICE, BARONESS D'EYNCOURT, and Grey, of Rotherfield, sole heiress of her father, mother, brother, and sister. She d. 15 EDWARD IV, having m. William, Baron Lovel (of Tichmarsh) and Holland, chief of the male line of the illustrious house of Yvery, in Normandy, named Lupellus, afterwards Lovel, and by him (who d. 13 June, 33 HENRY VI) had two sons, viz.,

1. JOHN, Lord Lovel and Holland, m. Joane, only dau. and heir of John, Lord Beaumont, and d. v. m. 4 EDWARD IV, leaving, with two daus., Joane, m. to Sir Bryan Stapleton, and Frideswithe, m. to Sir Edward Norris, one son, viz., FRANCIS, Lord Lovel, Holland, D'Eyncourt, and Grey, of Rotherfield, who adhered to the house of York, was in high favour with RICHARD III, was his Lord Chamberlain, and was created Viscount Lovel, and K.G. He fought at Bosworth, and afterwards in 1487, at Stoke, where he escaped by swimming the Trent on horseback, and is said to have perished in a cave or vault, discovered in 1708, at Minster Lovel, containing a skeleton, &c. (See BURKE'S Seats and Arms, p. 239, Tit. "Bayons Manor.") He d. s. p. By attainder, 11 HENRY VII, the ancient barony of D'Eyncourt, with his other honours and vast estates were forfeited, and amongst them, the manors of Bayons and Tevilby, co. Lincoln, which became, by subsequent grant and re-purchase, the property of the Tennyson family, and the former is now the stately residence of Mr. Tennyson-d'Eyncourt, who descends as will be seen, from the heir male of this distinguished nobleman—namely, from William, 2nd son of Alice, Baroness d'Eyncourt and Grey, which William was free from all corruption of blood, by reason of the said attainder. This H. WILLIAM, of whose descendants we treat, thus ultimately heir male of his father and mother, William, Lord Lovel, and Alice, Lady d'Eyncourt, m. Alianore, Baroness Morley, and in her right was summoned to Parliament, 9 EDW. IV., 1468, by the title of William Lovel de Morley, Chivaler, and d. 16 EDW. IV, and his wife dying in the same year, their only son s. as

ALICE LOVEL, his sole heiress. She m. Sir William Parker, afterwards Lord Morley in her right. He was a privy councillor and standard-bearer to RICHARD III, and was imprisoned in the Tower till 2 HENRY VIII, 1510, when he d. a violent death. She d. 1552, leaving her son and heir,

HENRY, LORD MORLEY, who m Alice, dau. of Sir John St. John, of Bletso, and thus became nearly allied to HENRY VIII. His dau. m. Lord Rochford, brother of Queen ANNE BOLEYN. His only son, Henry, d. in his lifetime, having married two wives, 1st, Grace, dau. and heiress of John Newport, of Brent-Pelham, co. Herts, and had by her a son, Henry, Lord Morley, of whom hereafter, and from whom the family of Tennyson-d'Eyncourt descend; 2ndly, Elizabeth Calthorp, by whom he had a son. Philip-Parker, whose descendant, Catherine-Long, m. John, 1st Earl of Egmont. The son and heir by the 1st marriage,

EDWARD, LORD MORLEY, summoned to parliament from 1581 to 1614. He m. Elizabeth Stanley, dau. and heiress of William, 3rd Lord Monteagle, and, in 1613, was s. by his son, WILLIAM, LORD MORLEY, and, in right of his mother, LORD MONTEAGLE, by which title he had been previously summoned, on her death, and it was to him that, in 1605, was written that memorable anonymous letter, which led to the detection of the Gunpowder Plot. This William, Lord Morley and Monteagle, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Tresham, and d. in 1622, leaving issue, of whom, Catherine, the eldest dau., m. to John Savage, Earl Rivers (through whom Mr. D'Eyncourt is descended from the Princess ANNE, eldest sister of EDWARD IV), and Elizabeth, m. to Edward Cranfield, Esq., ultimately, in 1636, became his co-heirs, and his son, Henry, and grandson, Thomas, successively Lords Morley and Monteagle, and two other sons, William and Charles, were then dead without issue. II. Charles-Frederick-St. Clair, b. 6 May, 1855.

III. William, b. 1859.
I. Clementina-Caroline.
II. Rosia.

Lineage.—This is a family noble in its very origin. WILLIAM DE CANDELA, the 1st Baron of Anstruther, in the year 1100, did not derive his name from his lands. He already had a noble surname, DE CANDELA, and lived in the reigns of DAVID I and MALCOLM IV, Kings of Scotland. He was Lord of Anstruther between 1100 and 1150. His grandson assumed the surname of Anstruther from his barony. SIR JOHN ANSTRUTHER, of Anstruther, the 13th Baron in direct descent from William de Candela, was in high favour with King JAMES VI, of Scotland. In 1585 he was appointed Hereditary Great Carver to the King, and in 1592, Master of the Royal Household. He had two sons, 1 SIR WILLIAM, who was Gentleman of the Bedchamber to King JAMES VI, and was made Knt. of the Bath at his coronation as King of England. He d. without male issue; 2 Sir Robert Anstruther, who was Gentleman of the Bedchamber to King JAMES I, and King CHARLES I, and was the confidential friend of both monarchs, by whom he was sent on many important diplomatic missions, in which he showed distinguished ability. In 1620, he was Ambassador Extraordinary to the King of Denmark; in 1627 he was Ambassador to the Emperor of Germany. He was sent by King CHARLES I and the King of Bohemia as their Plenipotentiary to the Diet at Ratisbon. In 1630 he was sent as ambassador to the Princes of Germany at Heilbrunn. He m. Catherine Swift, dau. of Sir Edward Swift, of Rothorham, in Yorkshire, and sister and co-heir of Viscount Carlingford. The intermarriages of the earlier Barons of Anstruther were with the following families: Balfour, afterwards Lord Burleigh; Sandilands, afterwards Lord Torphichen; Douglas, of Lochleven, afterwards Earl of Morton; Abercrombie, of that ilk; Clephane of Carslogie; Scott of Balwearie.

The son of the Ambassador, SIR PHILIP ANSTRUTHER, of Anstruther, the 15th Baron in direct descent from William de Candela, was zealously loyal, and held a high command in the royal army at the battle of Worcester. During the Protectorate his estates were sequestered, but were restored at the Restoration. By Christian Lumsden, dau. of Sir James Lumsden, of Innergellie, a distinguished general in the service of Gustavus Adolphus, he had five sons,

I. SIR WILLIAM ANSTRUTHER, of Anstruther, created a baronet, in 1694. He m. Lady Helen Hamilton, dau. of the 4th Earl of Haddington, by whom he had a son SIR JOHN, who s. in 1711, and in 1717, m. Lady Margaret Carmichael, dau. of James, 2nd Earl of Hyndford, and from this marriage is descended the present SIR WYNDHAM CARMICHAEL ANSTRUTHER, Bart. of Carmichael.
II. Sir James Anstruther, of Airdrie, whose son d. without issue.
III. SIR ROBERT, of whom presently.
IV. Sir Philip Anstruther, of Anstrutherfield, who left a son, Philip, and a dau., m. to John, Earl of Traquair.
V. Sir Alexander Anstruther, m. Jean Leslie, in her own right Baroness Newark, by whom he had issue, William and Alexander, 3rd and 4th Lords Newark.

SIR ROBERT ANSTRUTHER, the 3rd son of Sir Philip, was created a baronet in 1694, and acquired the estate of Balcaskie, in Fifeshire. By his 2nd wife, Jean, dau. and heiress of William Monteith, of Wrea, in the co. of Linlithgow, he had issue, I. Philip, his successor; II. Robert, a general officer, m. Lady Elizabeth Maitland, dau. of the Earl of Lauderdale; and several sons, who d. unm.; I. Christian, wife of Sir John Henderson, Bart. of Fordel; II. Jean, wife of James MacGill, of Rankeillor. Sir Robert m. 3rdly, Marion, dau. of Sir William Preston, of Valleyfield, Bart., by whom he had a son, Charles, a major in the army, and two daus., of whom Anne m. James Durham, of Largo. Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son,

SIR PHILIP ANSTRUTHER, 2nd Bart. of Balcaskie, who m. Catherine Hay, dau. of Lord Alexander Hay, son of John, 1st Marquis of Tweeddale, by Lady Jean Scott, dau. of Walter, 1st Earl of Buccleugh. By her he had issue,

I. Sir Robert Anstruther, 3rd Baronet of Balcaskie, who m. Lady Janet Erskine, dau. and eventually heiress of Alexander, 5th Earl of Kellie. He was grandfather of the present Sir Ralph Anstruther, 4th Bart. of Balcaskie.
II. JOHN, of whom hereafter; and several other sons, officers in the army, who d. unm. The dau., Christian, m. James Lumsden, of Innergellie.

JOHN ANSTRUTHER, 2nd surviving son of Sir Robert, was a colonel in the army. He m. Grizel-Maria Thomson, heiress of Charleton, and heiress of line of the St. Clairs, Earls of Orkney and Lords Sinclair. By her he had a son, John and two daus., one of whom d. unm., and the other m. her cousin, General James Durham, of Largo. Colonel John Anstruther's son,

JOHN ANSTRUTHER, assumed the additional surname of THOMSON, on account of his succession to the estate of Charleton. He m. Clementina, only dau. of the Right Hon. William Adam, of Blair Adam, M.P., baron of Exchequer, lord chief commissioner of the Jury court, and lord-lieut. of the co. of Kinross, by the Hon. Eleanor Elphinstone, dau. of Charles, 10th Lord Elphinstone, by Lady Clementina Fleming, heiress, of line of the Earls of Wigton, Marischal and Perth. By her he had, I. JOHN, his heir; II. William, a major in the army, commander of the body guard of the Governor-Gen. of India, m. Isabella, dau. of Col. Steel; I. Eleanor, m. James Montgomery, nephew of Sir James Montgomery, Bart. of Stanhope; II. Clementina; III. Louisa; IV. Mary, m. the Rev. A.-R. Campbell, son of Sir Archibald Campbell, Bart. of Garscube; V. Jean. John Anstruther-Thomson, of Charleton, was s. by his eldest son, John Anstruther-Thomson, now of Charleton, 20th in direct descent from William de Candela, Lord of Anstruther, and heir general of the St. Clairs, Earls of Orkney and Lords Sinclair.

St. Clair, Earl of Orkney and Lord Sinclair.

In the latter portion of the 9th century, Harold Harfagr, 1st King of all Norway, made a grant of the Orkney and Shetland Islands to Rognewald, Earl of Mœre and Raumdahl. Besides other children, Rognewald had two sons, Rollo, who conquered Neustria, and founded the line of Norman dukes, the progenitors of WILLIAM THE Conqueror, and Eynar, who was Earl of Orkney, and d. in 936. He was ancestor to a line of earls who reigned over the Orkney and Shetland Islands for five centuries as sovereign princes, under the supremacy of the Crown of Norway, and twice intermarried with the Norwegian Royal House. Sigurd II, Earl of Orkney, m. a dau. and co-heir of MALCOLM II, King of Scotland, and the succeeding Earls of Orkney descended from this marriage, and their representatives are thus co-heirs of the ancient kings of Scotland. Magnus, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, the last of these Scandinavian princes, had a dau. and heiress, Isabella, who m. Malise, Earl of Stratherne. Her son, Malise, Earl of Strathern, Orkney, and Caithness, had no son. His eldest dau. and heiress, Isabella, m. William St. Clair, Lord of Rosslyn, the head of a great Norman house. Her eldest son, Henry St. Clair, Lord of Rosslyn, was, in 1379, invested by HACO VI, King of Norway, with the earldom of Orkney. His son and grandson, Henry and William, Earls of Orkney, each m. ladies of the house of Douglas, who were grand-dans to ROBERT II and ROBERT III, Kings of Scotland. King JAMES III compelled Earl William to exchange his earldom of Orkney for the estates of Dysart and Ravensheugh, in the co. of Fife, and his lordship of Nithsdale for the earldom of Caithness. When he died, in 1480, he was styled Earl of Caithness and Lord Sinclair. He had three sons,

I. William, styled Master of Orkney and Caithness, disinherited by his father, but acknowledged by his brethren as head of their house, and endowed with the estates of Dysart and Ravensheugh.
II. Oliver, upon whom his father settled the lordship of Rosslyn. His family is now extinct.
III. William, upon whom his father settled the earldom of Caithness, which is still possessed by his descendants.

William, the eldest son of the Earl of Orkney and Caithness, was the ancestor of the Lords Sinclair. He was styled Master of Orkney, but on his death, in 1488, his son, Henry Sinclair, was immediately recognized as Lord Sinclair, and sat as a Peer in parliament.* Henry is styled 1st Lord Sinclair. His dau. Agnes, Countess of Bothwell, was mother of the Duke of Orkney, Queen MARY'S 3rd husband. There were seven Lords Sinclair, and their intermarriages were with daus. of the Earls of Rothes twice, Earl of Bothwell, Earl Marischal, Lord Lindsay, Earl of Wemyss. John, 7th Lord Sinclair, d. 1676. He had an only child, Catherine, Mistress of Sinclair, who was heiress to his title and estates. She m. John St. Clair, of Hermandston, of a very ancient and distinguished family, but in no way descended from the Earls of Orkney and Lords Sinclair, except through remote female alliances. Her son, Henry, inherited, in her right, the Sinclair peerage, and became, on his grandfather's death, in 1676, 8th Lord Sinclair. In 1677, he obtained a

* The original title of Lord Sinclair, for which there was no patent, was held by the Earls of Orkney, along with their earldom. Henry Sinclair, 2nd Earl of Orkney, was undoubtedly also Lord Sinclair. He d. about 1416. William Sinclair, 3rd Earl of Orkney, held the lordship of Sinclair, along with the earldom of Orkney and the earldom of Caithness, and at his death in 1480, he was Earl of Caithness and Lord Sinclair. The earldom of Orkney, and also the earldom of Caithness, as originally granted, were titles not limited to heirs male, but which descended to heirs general. It has been ruled as law in the case of the old lordship of Lindsay, which was attached to the earldom of Crawford, that a lordship, for which there was no patent, and which was held as an inferior title along with a great earldom, followed the course of succession of that superior title. It accordingly follows that the lordship of Sinclair was determined, as to its succession, by the great earldoms to which it was attached as an inferior title, and consequently was a peerage which descended to heirs general.

When Henry Sinclair, son of William, Master of Orkney and Caithness, was recognised by the King and parliament of Scotland, as Lord Sinclair in 1488, he was not then so created. The title which he already possessed was then formally acknowledged; and although generally reckoned the 1st, he was actually the 4th Lord Sinclair, dating the Sinclair peerage from the 2nd Earl of Orkney. His descendant John Sinclair, 7th or more properly 10th Lord Sinclair, the last of the male line that held the title, died in 1676. He was succeeded in the Sinclair peerage by his grandson Henry St. Clair, son of his only dau. and heir, Catherine, Mistress of Sinclair (who predeceased him), by her husband John St. Clair of Hermandston. Henry, thus became, in right of his mother, 8th or more properly 11th Lord Sinclair. He had the original title recognised, as is proved by his always enjoying the ancient precedency from 1488. In further proof that his peerage was one new patent of the Sinclair peerage from King CHARLES II, which entirely changed the succession, excluding his female issue, and after his issue male, introducing to the succession the younger branches of his father's family, who were aliens to the Lords Sinclair. Thus a stranger race was introduced into the succession to a title which was derived from his mother, to the exclusion of the female heirs of his body. But when Henry, 8th Lord, obtained a new patent of his peerage, he did not resign the original peerage to the Crown. It is therefore presumed that that original peerage still exists, and as it cannot be affected by the limitations of the patent of 1677, its rightful heir is the heir general of the Lords Sinclair, viz., Mr. Anstruther-Thomson, of Charleton. Henry, 8th Lord Sinclair, had two sons, John, Master of Sinclair, who was attainted for his share in the rebellion in 1715, and after his father's death did not assume the title. He d. in 1750, without issue by either of his wives, the Countess of Southesk and the sister of the 3rd Duke of Athol. His brother, General James St. Clair, a distinguished diplomatist, and de jure, 9th Lord, d. also without issue in 1762. Their eldest sister, the Hon. Grizel St. Clair, wife of John Paterson, of Preston Hall, son of the last Archbishop of Glasgow, left a son, James, and a dau. Margaret, wife of John Thomson, * of Charleton. James Paterson was a colonel in the army, and s. to the Sinclair estates on the death of his uncles, and assumed the surname of St. Clair, as heir general of the families of Lord Sinclair and St. Clair, of Hermandston. Dying without issue, his sister, Margaret, wife of John Thomson, of Charleton, became heir general of the Lords Sinclair, and transmitted her rights to her daughter, Grizel-Maria, heiress of Charleton, wife of Col. John Anstruther, and grandmother to Mr. Anstruther-Thomson, who is now heir general of the Earls of Orkney and Lords Sinclair. The present Lord Sinclair is a cadet of the family of Hermandston. The Earl of Rosslyn is descended from a younger dau. of the 8th Lord.

that descended to heirs female, Henry's succession was never disputed by his grandfather's cousin, and undoubted heir male, John Sinclair of Balgreggie, who, as he did not die until 1710, outlived the last Lord Sinclair of the male line thirty-four years; and during that long period, he never advanced a claim to the peerage, to which he would have been clearly entitled, if it had been limited to heirs male.

In 1677, Henry, 8th or more properly 11th Lord Sinclair, obtained from King CHARLES II, a new patent of the Sinclair peerage, with remainder, in default of the male issue of his own body, to the male heirs of his father, the St. Clairs of Hermandston, who were in no way descended from the Lords Sinclair. But in getting this new patent, he did not resign the original Sinclair peerage to the Crown. That peerage therefore continued to exist, and was in no way affected by the limitations of the patent of 1677. On the failure of the heirs male of the body of Henry, 8th or 11th Lord Sinclair, Mr. St. Clair of Hermandston claimed and obtained the title of Lord Sinclair, in consequence of the patent of 1677. While the original and unresigned Sinclair peerage continued to exist de jure, quite unaffected by that patent, which must be held to carry only a later peerage; and the old peerage stands exactly on the footing on which it originally stood anterior to the new patent. The right to it is vested in the undoubted representative and heir general of the 8th or 11th Lord, viz. John Anstruther-Thomson of Charleton, great great grandson and heir of the Hon. Grizel St. Clair, his eldest dau. and heir general, who is thus de jure Lord Sinclair of the original peerage.

THOMSON, ROBERT-CUNNINGHAM, Esq. of Castleton, co. Antrim, late capt. 2nd Queen's royals, b. 18 Oct. 1833, s. his father 26 July, 1862.

Lineage.—A family of the clan Campbell, of the noble house of Argyle, fled from that co. in the year 1608, to escape the effects of one of those periodical convulsions which frequently, in that century, rendered life and property so insecure in Scotland, and reaching the north of Ireland they settled in the neighbourhood of Belfast, in the co. of Antrim, where they thenceforth resided, and soon became possessed of considerable property and acquired a corresponding influence. The leading member of the family, which then immigrated from Scotland, was a clergyman of the Established Church, and he afterwards succeeded to the parish of Carumoney, where his descendants pursued the same profession for two hundred and twenty years. Successive members of the family subsequently became bankers in Belfast, and they se continued for several generations. The great-grandfather of the present representative,

Lineage.—Some time in the reign of King JAMES I, a branch of a Thornton family migrated from England to Ireland, and settled in Londonderry. At the breaking out of the rebellion of 1641, ROBERT THORNTON, a merchant in Derry, was mayor of that city, and it is matter of history how gallantly and well he performed his duties in providing against the expected attacks of the rebels. So satisfactory, indeed, was his conduct, civil and military, deemed, that he was continued in the office of mayor to the time of his death, in 1647. He, and others of his family, purchased property in Londonderry and elsewhere, from certain of the London companies. A near relative of Robert Thornton's,

JAMES THORNTON, Esq., son of Tristram Thornton, purchased, temp. CHARLES I, the estate in the co. of Cavan, still possessed by his descendants, and, in the following reign, had it confirmed to him by patent granted by the commissioners under the Act of Settlement. Soon after, he built a good and substantial dwelling-house, which he sometimes resided in, and which has, of late years, given place to the present mansion of Grenville. James Thornton d. 1671, and, by his will, bequeathed all his English property to his eldest son, Ambrose; his Cavan estate to his next eldest son, ISAAC; and his property in and about Londonderry to his youngest son, Thomas, a clergyman. Lineage.—The family of Tipping (anciently Typpynge) had its origin from a vill or hamlet of the same name, situate in the township of Clayton-le-Dale, co. Lancaster, and distant about five miles from the town of Blackburne. The mansion-house, called Tipping Hall, appears to have been possessed by a family bearing the local name certainly as early as temp. EDWARD III, but probably much earlier. The family became divided into two branches about the commencement of the sixteenth century, the elder of which was eventually dignified with a baronetcy, in the person of Sir Thomas Tipping, of Wheatfield, co. Oxon. The younger Lancashire branch settled at Preston, and afterwards removed to Manchester, where they became possessed of good estates.

RICHARD TIPPING was an alderman of Preston, co. Lancaster, temp. HENRY VII, and is recorded as such on the corporation rolls, A.D. 1500. He was s. p. (most probably his son)

RICHARD TIPPING, Gent. of Manchester, gave to his mansion-house the name of Tipping Gates. He m. and had issue three sons and four daus.,

Lineage.—This family claims descent from the ancient Norfolk house of Townsend. The first who settled in Ireland was a Colonel Richard Townsend, Townesend, or Townshend, an officer in the army of the Parliament during the wars previous to the Commonwealth. In 1646, he was present at the surrender of Pondennis Castle, in Cornwall, and on 3 Nov. of the following year, his regimont having, in the preceding June, been ordered to Ireland by the House of Commons, we find him commanding the main body of the army, under Lord Inchiquin, at the battle of Knockonces, near Mallow, co. Cork, Cols. Grey and Blunt, heading the left and right wings respectively. Col. Townsend presented the keys of the city of Cork to Oliver Cromwell at Dungarvon. Col. Townsend made several large purchases of land from time to time, for which he got three several patents, viz. in 1666, 1668, and 1679; the first being for Castle Townsend (now the seat of the head of the family), which he had purchased some time before. Lineage.—This family derives its surname from its ancient seat, Tregonwell, in Cornwall. Pollen, in his description of Cornishmen and manners, mentions the Tregonwells as of Bellarmine, and records that "they builded many places, and had many lands and manors before the NORMAN CONQUEST." Towards the close of the 15th century,

TREGONWELL, of Tregonwell, had two sons,

HUBERT, his heir, whose male descendants became extinct in the reign of King JAMES I; the co-heiresses marrying then, Bawden, Pollamounter, and Penpoll.
JOHN.

The younger son,

JOHN TREGONWELL, an eminent civilian in the time of HENRY VIII, was employed by that monarch in suing his celebrated divorce from CATHERINE of Arragon. In 1584, he was appointed by special commission, with others named therein to preside in the Court of Chancery, during the absence of the lord chancellor, Sir Thomas Wriothesley, and in 1550 he was constituted one of the commissioners of the Great Seal, in consequence of the indisposition of the Lord Chancellor Rich. In 1552, he received the honour of knighthood, and was returned to Parliament by the burgesses of Scarborough, and he was sheriff of Dorset and Somersetshire in 1554. In addition to those great and lucrative offices, the King conferred upon him very extensive territorial grants, amongst others, the mitred abbey of Milton, in Dorsetshire, surrendered 11 March, 1538, by Abbot Bradley. In this abbey, Sir John Tregonwell was interred in 1565, under an altar tomb of grey marble. He was s. by his grandson,

Lineage.—This family obtained the name of Tripp, temp. HENRY V. Its coat of arms is painted and emblazoned on an ancient escutcheon belonging to the present Dr. Tripp. Underneath the shield is the following inscription:—" This atchievement was given unto my Lord Howard's 5th son at ye siege of Bullogne; King Harry ye 5th being there, ask'd how they took ye town and castle; Howard answer'd, ' I Tripp'd up ye walls '; saith his Majesty, ' Tripp shall be thy name, and no longer Howard,' and hon'rd him with ye scaling-ladder for his bend."*

That this family resided in Somersetshire, and had landed property in that county for many generations, appears from a great number of old parchment deeds in the possession of Dr. Tripp. The oldest which has at present been found is in the reign of HENRY VIII, and relates to the estate of East Brent, which has only lately been sold, and which must, therefore, have been in this family from that time at least, and, perhaps, before. Relating to the same estate of East Brent there are several deeds in the succeeding reigns, and a marriage settlement of the time of CHARLES II, in which East Brent, Shipham, and Newbay, are mentioned as family property.

Lineage.—This family, the only one of the name long-settled in England, is of great antiquity in the county of Durham. The surname is Saxon, and Robert Trotar is mentioned in Doomesday Book as holding a house at the royal city of Winchester, of King EDWARD THE CONFESSOR, at a rent of £5 yearly.* The earliest county records, in the 14th century, show the present family to have been then seated at Byers Green, and it has been handed down that one of its patriarchs bequeathed seven separate estates and residences to his seven sons. In the 15th century the principal properties of the Trotters (among others,—one of which is now in the family), were Byers or Byers Green, and Helmeden, now Helmington Halls, in the same parish (the latter being acquired by a marriage with the heiress of Sir Hugh Burdon, Lord of Helmeden), and their owners being, if not brothers, near relations.

The HELMEDEN family appear to have held a prominent position, and to have suffered from their attachment to the house of Neville, with which they were connected by marriage,—the Lady Adeline Neville, dau. of Henry, 4th Earl of Westmoreland, K.G., "last wreck of his family's greatness" (and who, in 1576, was one of the sponsors at the baptism of the Anthony Trotter who s. his father at Helmeden, and m. Gertrude Wrenn, dau. of Col. Francis Wrenn, of Henknowle, the brother of Sir Charles Wrenn, of Bynchester) having found a shelter with them until her death. Eventually the lordship of Helmeden, together with Willington Hall, was sold by order of his father's will, about A.D. 1700, by the Rev. Thomas Trotter, who retired to his family living of Kirby Fleetham, co. York; and the line became extinct.

After several generations of the Byers Green family, succeeded

GEORGE TROTTER, Gent.,† who m. a dau. of Thomas Batmanson, Esq. of Brome Hall, and had two sons; and a dau., Elizabeth, m. to Martin Richmond, son of Christopher Richmond, Gent. of Heighington,

The elder son,

GEORGE TROTTER, of Byers Hall, m. Mary, dau. and co-heir of Robert March, of Redworth Hall (vide Heralds' Visit. Durham A.D. 1575) by Margaret his wife, dau. of Robert Byerley, Esq., of Pyk-hall, in Richmondshire, ancestor to the distinguished Byerleys of Midrigge Grange, who was the eldest son of Thomas March, of Redworth, by his wife the heiress of the very ancient family of Heighington of Redworth. There was issue of this marriage two sons, the elder of whom, James, m. Elizabeth Steele.

The younger son,

GEORGE TROTTER, s. his father, being the executor and heir of his will. He is mentioned in wills of the Batmansons in 1613, 1625, and 1635 as a relative, along with Sir J. Claxton, Knt., Gerard Salvin, Esq., of Croxdale, John Hedworth, of Chester Deanery, and John Smith, Gent. of Esho. He appears to have sold a portion of the Whitworth estate to Mark Shafto, Esq. By Jane his wife, he left at his decease, a numerous family, of whom,

* Douglas, however, in his "Baronage of Scotland, in an account of the Berwickshire Trotters, since about 1320, mentions the family tradition that (perhaps from the Trotters quartering the arms of the ancient family of Giffard) it is believed a brother of Lord Giffard's (the Giffards were Earls of Buckingham at the time of Doomesday Book) took the name of Trotter at some early period, by royal command, and on account of the speedy performance of a special service.

† Early in the 16th century a member of this family—apparently George Trotter's uncle—married the heiress of the Woods of Pickering, Yorkshire (a branch of which family Sir Charles Wood, Bart., now represents), and shortly afterwards acquiring Skelton Castle, in Cleveland, the ancient stronghold of the Bruce, founded there a distinguished line of knights and esquires which intermarried with the Durham Trotters, and also allied itself to the noble families of Pudsey, Scrope, Nevill, Chomeley, Lowther, and others, till, in 1730, Lawson Trotter, Esq. d. without issue, and his eldest sister m. the ancestor of the present owner of Skelton, John Wharton, Esq. In the large window of Julius Cæsar's room at Skelton Castle the arms of Forcer, of Pudsey, of Witham, of Chomeley, of Boyce, and of Lowther, are impaled with those of Trotter, in stained glass.

Mr. Trotter took his degree as a Grand Compounder of Clare College, Cambridge, and at the time of the threatened French invasion of this country, he raised and equipped at his own expense and commanded a troop of yeomanry. Lineage.—The Tuppers are descended from an ancient Saxon family, and, according to documentary evidence, variously spelt Toupard or Toupart, Topffer, Topffer, Topper, &c., especially in Germany, where the family still exists. From religious persecution, it removed to the Low Countries, and from thence took refuge in England, temp. HENRY VIII. Three brothers, HENRY and ROBERT TUPPER settled at Chichester, co. Sussex, and WILLIAM settled in London, and acquired lands by letters patent from Queen ELIZABETH, at Seaford, in Sussex, and had other grants from the Crown in co. Essex. Another member of the family settled at Sandwich, co. Kent, and he or his descendants emigrated, in the 16th century, to America, and became the founder of the numerous branches now existing in various parts of the United States. Two other members of the family fled from "Cassell" before 1520; one of whom settled in Holland, and his only living descendant, Daniel Tupper, held in 1813 the municipal office of burgomaster of Rotterdam; the other settled in Switzerland, and is said to have been the progenitor of Rodolphus Topffer, the celebrated author.

The first of the family who settled in Guernsey was John Tupper, son of Henry, of Chichester, mentioned above, who, proceeding on a voyage to Bordeaux, to better his fortunes, was shipwrecked on the coast of the island, and receiving the succour and hospitality of a Mr. Peter le Pelley, a gentleman of ancient family residing near the locality of the disaster, soon after married his only dau. and heiress, Mary (by Collette his wife, only dau. of Hillary Gosselin, Esq., bailiff or chief magistrate of Guernsey, and relict of Thomas Le Marchant, Esq.), and settled in the island, where he subsequently purchased a large estate, and became the ancestor of the Tuppers, who have been from that period among the first families of the island. Several of Mr. Tupper's descendants have gallantly fought and distinguished themselves in the service of their country.

Kemeys of Kevanmably.

The house of Kemeys, originally De Camois, Camoes, and Camys, is of Norman extraction, and the name of its patriarch is to be found on the roll of Battle Abbey. Large possessions were granted to the family in the cos. of Sussex and Surrey, and so early as the year 1258, Ralph de Camois was a baron by tenure. He was s. by his son, Ralph de Camois, who was summoned to parliament 49 HENRY III, and his descendants sat among the peers of the realm until the demise, issueless, in 5 HENRY VI, of Hugh de Camois, who left his sisters, Margaret, m. to Ralph Rademelde, and Eleanor, wife of Roger Lewknor, his co-heirs (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage). A branch of the family, which had settled in Pembrokeshire, there enjoyed large possessions, and as Lords of Camaes and St. Dogmaels, exercised almost regal sway. In the conquest of Monmouthshire and Glamorganshire, the Camays were much distinguished, and were rewarded with grants of "Kemeys' Commander," and "Kemeys' Inferior." One branch became established at Llanvarr Castle, in Monmouthshire (now in possession of Col. Kemeys-Tynte), and another, fixing itself at the Began, in Glamorganshire, erected the mansion of Cefn Mably, the residence of the present chief of the family.

UNIACKE OF MOUNT UNIACKE.

UNIACKE, NORMAN-JAMES-BIGGS, Esq. of Mount Uniacke, co. Cork, formerly an officer in the Denbighshire cavalry, m. 10 Sept. 1844, Mary-Elizabeth, 2nd dau. of the late Col. Drinkwater-Bethune, of Balfour, co. Fife, and has issue,

I. NORMAN-COMPTON-FITZGERALD.
I. Eleanor-Georgina.
II. Geraldine-Cecilia.

Lineage.—This ancient family, whose original name was Fitz-Gerald (descended from the Desmond branch of the great Geraldine family) went to Ireland about the close of the 12th century. The name, a singular one, arose according to tradition from the following circumstance: In the skirmishes which were constantly taking place between the rival houses of Fitz-Gerald and Butler, a service, attended by great danger, becoming necessary to be done, and the commander hesitating whom to employ, an individual was pointed out and recommended to him with this remark, "Unicus est," meaning "He is the only person to undertake this service." These two words were used as the family motto until the period of the battle of the Boyne: in that memorable conflict, James-Fitzgerald Uniacke, of Coolegaragh, since called Mount Uniacke, commanded a troop of cavalry, and being present when King WILLIAM'S horse was shot, dismounted, and offered his to the King, who, accepting it, called him a faithful and true man, and taking a pistol from his holster said, "Let that be your crest evermore." The family crest previous to this was a dexter armed arm gauntleted, holding a hawk's lure, but James-Fitzgerald Uniacke, and his descendants have since used the motto, "faithful and brave," and taken for crest a dexter arm in armour holding a pistol. It appears by the ancient public records, that the family of Uniacke was settled at an early period in the South of Ireland, and had possessions in the counties of Cork, Waterford, and Tipperary. The following notices of four descents in the 13th and 14th centuries, are extracted from the records in the Bermingham Tower in the Castle of Dublin: Bernard de Uniak, Esq. was resident at Cork, in 1305, as appears by an entry on the plea-roll of that year. His son, Bernard de Uniak, Esq. of Youghal, co. Cork, living in 1311, is mentioned in the plea-roll, and also in the great roll of the pipe, all preserved in that depository of ancient records. His son, PHILIP DE UNIAK, of Youghal, was living in 1335. Thomas de Uniak, of Cork, son of the said Philip de Uniak, of Youghal, was father of Thomas de Uniak, of Cork, living there in 1391. There having been but one family in Ireland of this peculiar name, it is certain that the present Uniackes, descend from the above-mentioned persons, though the intermediate generations from 1390 to 1500 have been lost sight of. The branch of this family which settled in co. Tipperary have since assumed the name of Fitz-Gerald, and are represented by Sir John-Judkin Fitzgerald, Bart. of Lishen, co. Tipperary. The principal seat was Ballyhubbert, near Youghal, until the middle of the 17th century, and since then Mount Uniacke, also near Youghal, both in co. Cork.

THOMAS UNIACKE, Esq. of Ballyhubbert, who was the son of Edmund Uniacke, Esq. of Youghal, grandson of Thomas Uniacke, Esq., and great-grandson of Thomas Uniacke, Esq. of Ballyhubbert, who was living in 1500, had, by Margaret his wife, two sons, I. UPTON OF INGMIRE HALL.

UPTON, ELIZA-FRANCES, present proprietrix of Ingmire Hall, co. Westmoreland, is elder dau. of the late Thomas Upton, Esq. of Ingmire Hall, and sister of the present Sir John-Henry-Greville Smyth, Bart. of Ashton Court, co. Somerset.

Lineage.—The family of Upton, or, as the name was anciently spelt, De Uppeton, were settled at Upton, in Cornwall, about the time of the CONQUEST. From the extreme age of the original pedigree, still in existence at Ingmire Hall, some of the earlier names and dates are illegible, but from the 12th century, the descent is continued down in an unbroken line to JOHN UPPETON, de Uppeton, Cornwall.

ARTHUR UPTON, Esq. of Lupton, elder brother of the Chevalier John Upton,* knight of Malta, and grandson of John Upton, of Lupton, Devon, by Joan his wife, dau. and heir of Sir Winecomb Raleigh, Knt., was 4th in descent from the marriage of JOHN UPTON, Esq. younger son of John Upton, of Trelaske, Cornwall, with Agnes, sister and heir of John Peniles, of Lupton. URQUHART OF MELDRUM AND BYTH.

Urquhart, Beauchamp-Colclough, Esq. of Meldrum and Byth, co. Aberdeen, b. 5 May, 1830; m. 5 Aug. 1856, Isabella-Forbes, dau. of the late Gen. Sir Hugh Fraser, K.C.B. of Braelangwell, co. Ross, and has issue, Beauchamp-Colclough, b. 20 July, 1860.

Isabel-Annie, b. 19 April, 1857.

Lineage.—Divers authentic historians attest the antiquity and eminence of the great house of Urquhart. Lord Hales, in his Annals mentions that Edward I. during the interregnum, prior to the accession of John Baliol, to the crown, made out a list of sheriffs (half of whom were English and half Scotch), and that among the Scotch appears the name of William Urquhart de Cromarty, heritable sheriff of Cromarty continued.

Urquhart of Cromarty has ever been acknowledged as chief of the name, and formerly possessed, either in property or superiority, almost that whole county. In the time of Alexander I, Galleroch Urchart is mentioned in a composition between Andrew, bishop of Murray, "et dominum Olanum Ostiarium;" and in the reign of Robert Bruce, William Urchard, of Cromarty, was heritably sheriff of that shire. A principal line was Urquhart of Braelanwell, in the parish of Kirkmichael, which continued to hold the Braelanwell property until the present generation, when the late proprietor, Charles-Gordon Urquhart, Esq., an officer in the Scots' greys, sold the estate, with the exception of a small portion, including the ancient burying-ground of Kirkmichael, which, having descended in strict tail, was and is unalienable, and is now enjoyed by that gentleman's brother, the present David Urquhart, Esq., late M.P. for Stafford.

Sir Alexander Urquhart, of Dunlugas, eventually inherited Cromarty at the decease of his elder brother, Sir Thomas Urquhart, a devoted royalist. He d. in 1661, leaving two daus.: the elder m. to Sir Harry Guthrie, of Kingodward; and the younger, Christian, m. 1st, to Lord Rutherford; 2ndly, to James, Viscount Fendraught; and 3rdly, to George Morrison, of Bognie.

John Urquhart (2nd son of Alexander Urquhart,* of Cromarty, by Beatrix his wife, dau. of Innes of Auchintoul), b. 1547, became tutor to his grand-nephew, Sir Thomas Urquhart, and was well known afterwards by the designation of tutor of Cromarty. The tutor of Cromarty, "renowned," saith Sir Thomas Urquhart, "all over Britain, for his deep reach of natural art," d. 8 Nov. 1631, aged 84. He m. three times. His eldest son, by his 3rd wife, Elizabeth, only dau. and heir of Alexander Seton, of Meldrum, 6th in descent from the marriage of William Seton (younger son of Sir Alexander Seton, Lord of Gordon) with Elizabeth, dau. and heir of William Meldrum, was

* Alexander Urquhart, of Cromarty, was the eldest of the twenty-five sons of Thomas Urquhart, of Cromarty, by Helen his wife, dau. of Alexander, Lord Abernethy; seven of these sons fell at Pinkie. From some of these sons that travelled with great gallantry to forrain countries, is descended (as I am informed) that worthy knight in Devonshire, called Sir John Urquhart, who both for his considerable fortune, and far greater merit, is highly renowned in the south parts of England; as likewise several families near Carlisle, designed by the name of Urquhart, of such estimation there that (as I was told) some of them not aloug ago, have been mayors of the city, and sheriffs of the county."—Sir Thomas Urquhart's παντοχρονοχανον.
